GHAHARI H.: A faunistic study on digger wasps of Iran (Hymenoptera).

Abstract: This paper deals with distribution data of 53 species of Iranian digger wasps from 27 genera and three families, Ampulicidae (single species), Crabronidae (28 species, 16 genera) and Sphecidae (24 species, 9 genera). Eight species are new records for the fauna of Iran: Bembix diversipes F. Morawitz, 1889, Cerceris quadrifasciatus (Panzer, 1799), Lestica (Lestica) subterranea (Fabricius, 1775) (Crabronidae), Ammophila sabulosa sabulosa (Linnaeus, 1758), Podalonia tydei tydei (Le Guillou, 1841), Prionyx viduatus viduatus (Christ, 1791), Sceliphron (Sceliphron) spirifex (Linnaeus, 1758) and Sphex (Sphex) flavipennis Fabricius, 1793 (Sphecidae).

Keywords: Ampulicidae, Crabronidae, Sphecidae, fauna, distribution, Iran

Introduction

The fauna of Iranian digger wasps has poorly been studied so far. The first work on this taxon was done by de GUSSAKOVSKIJ (1933), and after that many other contributions have been published: BEAUMONT (1957, 1970), ESMAILI & RASTEGAR (1974), EBRAHIMI (1993a, 1993b, 2000a, 2000b, 2005, 2008), EBRAHIMI et al. (1995), GHAZISOLTANZADEH et al. (2006), FALLAHZADEH et al. (2006, 2009), SAKENIN et al. (2010, 2011), SAMIN et al. (2015), REZAEI & FALLAHZADEH (2015), and ATBAEI et al. (2015). Recently JAHANTIGHI et al. (2017) listed 404 species belonging to 71 genera and 11 subfamilies for the fauna of Iran. The aim of this paper is a faunistic work on digger wasps collected from different regions of Iran and presenting of eight new country records.

Material and methods

The materials were collected from different regions of Iran using common handy entomological net and Malaise trap. Additionally, several materials were collected from some insect collections of Islamic Azad University (Science and Research, Qaemshahr, Rudehen, Garmsar and Shahre Rey Branches). Most of the specimens were identified by Dr. T. Ljubomirov and some by Dr. P. Nemkov, and are deposited in their collections. Classification and nomenclature were taken from PULAWSKI (2016). The localities of Iran are represented in the figure 1.

Discussion

Finding these eight new country records and also regarding to data of the checklist JAHANTIGHI et al. (2017) indicate that the fauna of Iranian digger wasps is diverse and rather unknown. With this eight new records total number of species of Iranian digger wasps reaches to 412. Iran is a vast country with huge numbers of varieties in landscapes and weather conditions (ZEHZAD et al. 2002). This rich environmental condition led to the high diversity of flora of Iran Plateau (GHAHREMAN & ATTAR 1999) that affects the species richness of insects, like digger wasps. Conducting the faunistic surveys systematically in different areas of Iran especially in east and south where have poorly been studied, will result to finding several new records and probably new species.

Acknowledgements

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to Dr. Toshko Ljubomirov (Bulgarian Academy of Sciences) for identification of specimens, W.J. Pulawski (California Academy of Sciences, USA) for editing the manuscript, the late A.W. Hook (St. Edward's University, USA) for his comments on Iranian digger wasps and sending identification keys, and M. Ohl (Museum für Naturkunde, Germany) for providing some papers.
