About the Stata syntaxes:

The do files contain Stata syntaxes. Datasets containing information on student borrowers are available only through restricted-use license from the United States Department of Education. Contents of licensed files – such as variable statistics, variable descriptions, and numbers of observations – are protected by Section 183 of the Educational Sciences Reform Act of 2002. Therefore, syntaxes related to variable names are redacted to a generic form.

How to apply for the licensed data:

Restricted-use license can be obtained via the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES), part of the Institute of Education Sciences (IES) of the United States Department of Education. Detailed information about the application procedure can be found in the Restricted-Use Data Procedures Manual here: https://nces.ed.gov/statprog/rudman/toc.asp.

Applications should be submitted through the IES online portal (the standard application process portal) here: https://nces.ed.gov/statprog/instruct.asp.

The contact information of the IES Data Security Office is as follows:
IES Data Security, NCES, PCP 4165
400 Maryland Avenue SW
Washington, DC 20202
IESData.Security@ed.gov