Witnesses said that the villagers, mostly youths, pelted stones at the forces who have laid a cordon around the plant nursery where a fierce exchange of gunfire is going on.

Villagers came out in defence of militants engaged in a gunfight at a plant nursery in Pulwama district of south Kashmir on Wednesday evening by hurling rocks at the government forces.

Witnesses said that the villagers, mostly youths, pelted stones at the forces who have laid a cordon around the plant nursery where a fierce exchange of gunfire is going on.

So far there have been no reports of any deaths or injuries.

Meanwhile, several photojournalists alleged that they were thrashed by paramilitary CRPF men as they were discharging their professional duties.

“They (CRPF men) abused, beat us up and even used us as sheilds against the stones hurled by the youths,” alleged Kamran Yusuf, a photojournalist with a Jammu-based daily.

Inspector General of Police (IG) Kashmir, SJM Gilani said they will look into the issue.

"We don’t have any information on the thrashing of journalists. But we will enquire into it," he told Greater Kashmir.
