Strength of Threat:		Translation:
Go ahead—make my day	"The President would veto it." [Tax bill, HR 2488, July 27]	No doubt about it; these bills will be vetoed.
	"If the bill is presented to the President in its current form, he will veto it because..." [Teacher block grants, HR 1995, July 19]
Change this or else	"If HR 975 were presented to the President in its current form, his senior advisors would recommend that it be vetoed." [Steel imports, March 16]	"Senior advisors" means OMB Director Jack Lew.
	"If HR 391 were presented to the President in its current form, the Attorney General, the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Transportation, and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency would recommend that he veto it." [Small business paperwork, Feb. 9]	Four top-level officials should be able to earn a veto.
We'll think about it	"If S 96 were presented to the President, either as reported or in the form of the proposed McCain-Wyden amendment, the Attorney General would recommend a veto." [Y2K, April 27]	One Cabinet member could persuade president to veto — or maybe not.
	"The Administration strongly opposes enactment of HR 1658." [Civil asset forfeiture, June 23]
	"The Administration supports the general objectives and intent of HR 409....However, the Administration has serious concerns about the bill." [Federal financial assistance, Feb. 24]	We want changes — but probably will sign it anyway.
	"The Administration would support HR 208 if it were amended to delete..." [Thrift Savings Plan rollovers, April 20]	Hint: Make some changes and we'll sign it.
We wish you wouldn't	"The Administration has no objection to House passage of HR 8194..." [Federal Maritime Commission authorization, March 8]	Don't worry.
