Data Sharing and Collaboration: This survey was conducted as part of a collaboration between researchers at University of Vermont, Johns Hopkins University, Arizona State University and University of Arizona. The research team is deploying this survey, and subsequent updated versions, nationally and in other states across the US and potentially globally. This effort is also part of the national collaboration from the National Food Access and COVID research Team (NFACT)- www.nfactreserach.org . We are very interested in collaborating with researchers who are interested in using questions from this survey for comparative analysis. If you utilize this survey in your work, please contact Meredith Niles (mtniles@uvm.edu) to let us know and discuss collaboration opportunities.

Please note that the survey below does not include the full IRB consent form from the University of Vermont, which was required of participants to confirm their participation.

General Food Access (part 1 of 5)

In this survey we will refer to "since the COVID-19 outbreak" in many questions. We are using March 2020 as a start date for the COVID-19 outbreak. While it had been building for some time, that was the date the World Health Organization declared that the outbreak was a pandemic. When we ask about "the year before the COVID-19 outbreak," we mean March 2019 to February 2020.

Which of the following places did your household use to get food in the year before the COVID-19 outbreak and in the last 4 months?

The current COVID-19 outbreak is just like the seasonal flu
COVID-19 will affect other states more than mine
COVID-19 will affect other countries more than the United States
COVID-19 will affect people like me
The US should prioritize the economy over public health when it comes to COVID-19
Average people should stay at home as much as possible to prevent the spread of COVID-19
Please select 2 here (Q16_13)
It is worth the health risk to maintain the food supply such as requiring farms and food processing plants to stay open, because we need food
If grocery or food delivery workers went on strike, I would take action to support them (like shop elsewhere, sign a petition, contribute money)
At this moment in the COVID-19 pandemic, I feel morally obligated to choose foods with low environmental impacts

Compared to before the COVID-19 pandemic, do you feel more, less or about the same level of moral obligation to choose foods with low environmental impacts?
