"Political science scholarship on the Middle East: A view from the journals"
PS: Political Science & Politics, 2021.

Melani Cammett, Harvard University (mcammett@g.harvard.edu)
Isabel Kendall, Harvard College, (ikendall@college.harvard.edu)

Coding schemes

Methods (Disaggregated)

1. Experimental
2. (Quantitative) automated text analysis/machine learning/"big data"
3. Large-n statistical: Cross-national
4. Large-n statistical: Sub-national
5. (Qualitative) single case study
6. (Qualitative) comparative case study (i.e., 1-6 cases)
7. (Qualitative) medium-n study (i.e., > 6 cases)
8. (Qualitative) interviews
9. (Qualitative) ethnography
10. (Qualitative) content/discourse analysis
11. Game theory/formal models

Methods (Aggregated)

1. Experimental
2. Statistical (includes: automated text analysis/machine learning/"big data", large-n statistical: cross-national, large-n statistical: sub-national)
3. Qualitative (includes single case study, comparative case study (i.e., 1-6 cases), medium-n study (i.e., > 6 cases), interviews, ethnography, content/discourse analysis)
4. Formal theory

Topics

1. Regimes (democracy/authoritarianism/hybrid regimes, regime change)
2. Religion and politics (incl. Political Islam)
3. Social mobilization
4. Gender
5. Political economy/development
6. Patronage and clientelism
7. International relations (includes anti-Americanism)
8. Political violence (i.e., terrorism, riots)
9. Conflict (i.e., international and civil wars, includes conflict resolution)
10. Identity and culture and norms, ethnicity, diversity
11. Elections and voting behavior
12. Political Institutions