It's good you came in today. We are seeing a lot of infections like this and they can get really serious.
They are usually caused by bacteria that can get into your body when you're injecting, either through breaks in your skin from the needle or if the needle gets bacteria on it.
There are things you can do to prevent infections like this.
OK.

To take the best care of you, it's helpful for me to know what your goals are. Have you thought about changing your use?
I've thought about it. But not right now.
If you ever decide you're interested in cutting back on your use or stopping altogether, we can talk about starting medications like suboxone® or methadone which can help.
Suboxone
8 mg/2 mg
Rx only
But in the meantime, let's talk about how to keep you safe while you are using.
Great thanks...
