29 January 2021
Updated 2 February 2021 with time and online location of speech

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. – The Supreme Court of Missouri has been conducting its business virtually since mid-March. Given that individual health concerns remain in flux due to the nature of the coronavirus, out of an abundance of caution for all involved and after discussions with legislative leaders, Chief Justice George W. Draper III will be delivering this year's state of the judiciary address in a virtual format as well. It will be provided in written form to the Missouri House of Representatives and Missouri Senate for entry in their journals, and the video will be posted at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, February 2 to the Missouri Court website.
