Capitalizing on Complexity

Insights from the Global Chief Executive Officer Study

IBM

Interviewed 1,541 CEO's, general managers and senior public sector leaders in 60 countries and 233 industries.

Findings showed that:

CREATIVITY IS THE MOST IMPORTANT LEADERSHIP QUALITY

"Creative leaders expect to make deeper business model changes to realize their strategies. To succeed, they take more calculated risks, find new ideas, and keep innovating in how they lead and communicate"

Invent, design and build a creative tool that can pick up an egg, crack it and beat it.

Your hands can never touch the egg. The tool has to be made out of wood and be one form initially that can come apart if necessary.
