Usage Notes

- Political party is defined as an organization that nominates candidates for public office. The term includes a longstanding coalition such as the CDU/CSU in Germany if that coalition functions in most respects like a single party. Sometimes, the identity of a party is obscured by name changes. However, if the party changes names but retains key personnel and is still run by and for the same constituencies then it should be considered the same organization. This definition is provided as is in Appendix A Glossary of V-Party Codebook.
- For references and data, see V-Party data download web page on V-Dem Project's website.
- For each country present in V-Party dataset, there is a table with the parties that were elected to national legislative body at least once starting 1900 or the year when the country was declared (For more information on how V–Dem Project defines countries, please, see Country Coding Units document). Along with country name as defined in V-Dem annual dataset, we also provide country's country_id in round brackets.
- Each table's header contains the name of party (variable v2paenname), its abbreviation (v2pashname), and party ID (v2paid) in the dataset. In addition to these variables, for each country the header includes election years for which the data is present.
- For parties that were elected there are either A, C, or A,C-class variables, which is denoted correspondingly by capital letter "A", "C", or "A/C". For such party-election years the dataset has observations for at least A-class variable. Starting with 1970 (and in the case of Cuba - 1965), the dataset contains expert–coded data.
- Columns v2paenname, v2pashname, and v2paid are clickable. If you click on any of the entries in the .pdf version of the document you will be landed on the party's web page on the Party Facts project website where you can find more information about the corresponding party.
- For convenience, the countries are organised in accordance with the United Nations Statistical Division geographic regions.
