I think that Republicans are more hypocritical because they support things that the Republicans do but when Democrats do them they get all angry with them.

I agree completely. Look at the situation in Texas right now the Republicans we're all supportive of police and tell the cops were too scared to go in and protect their children
user2

Right and when they find out that the police didn't do the right thing they switch the topic of it to say that they need to have more exits to switch the conversation.

Republicans like to pretend like they are pro-life but they only care about kids until they are born
user2

I agree with that if they were so pro life they would care about what happens when someone who doesn't want a kid has one.
user1

The problem with them is they are so extremely short-sighted they can't think outside their own personal situations.
user2

They want all the rights for themselves and don't care how it impacts other people.
user1

Exactly, over and over again I have seen them complain about having to pay taxes and then in the same sentence complaining about potholes in the road and have the road should be repaired. They don't want to pay taxes but they want the benefits from somebody paying taxes
user2

They want all the benefits without the costs. I think that if they could compromise more we would be a better country.
