hi
user1

hello
user2

i feel like there's only one answer to this, which is republicans. they have no real positions. the point of any of their beliefs is cruelty to others.
user1

republicans. in the most recent reason as to why is for supreme court justice picks. under obama he had about a year left on his term and was told he could not pick a supreme court justice as it wouldnt be fair for the nation because he was leaving office. and republicans were so crazed about not letting him get a pick because it would not be fair. trump takes office and makes a pick. with 6 months left in his term and being impreached twice there is another opportunity to pick someone. republicans pushed through this decision to let trump pick. it was as if they had never gone through the previous sitiuation with obama
user2

a great example to me is far-right individuals attempting to use pro-choice language to prop up their anti-science viewpoints re: masks and vaccines
user1

freedom for me but not for thee
user1

ðŸ‘‍
user1

that is a good point. i do think that they are hypocritical on that issue as well.
user2

they are very behind making choices for their bodies and not letting the government interfere, but if it has to do with a pregnant woman then that no longer applies
user2