I definitely think Republicans are more hypocritical of the bunch because they judge and hold people to standards they themselves don't even follow.
user1

What a great subject to chat about especially in view of the top story in the news today which shows the utter disregard of republicans for the facts.
user2

I agree. With everything happening right now, 'thoughts and prayers' do nothing.
user1

Yes, and yet they continue to blame everything else expect the proliferation of guns in our society.
user2

They do not care for much except their vested interests in the NRA.
user1

There is no reason a person, outside of the military, should have access to auto or semiautomatic weapons, but they will protect those 'rights' while children continue to die.
user1

True. I thought that the NRA was bankrupt. That's why they moved to Texas, the most backward state in the union.
user2

They keep insisting the guns don't kill people. What other use does a gun have?
user2

Yeah, I am not completely familiar with TX policies, but they keep going more and more off the rails! I'd be afraid to live in that state for sure.
user1

I agree. And they blame mental health, but don't other countries have people with mental health issues? And they don't have issues of shootings like here.
user1

Yes. I think the only thing that attracts business there are the low tax rate. There governor is definitely off the rails.
user2

I wish Repubs could stop looking at the $$ and start doing what's best for our nation as a whole.
user1

Nice to chat with you!
user1

You know it didn't used to make much difference whether a politician was dem or repub but in the past two decades they have moved into a land of their own.
user2

Yes. I enjoyed it very much.
user2