I don't like to generalize about political parties. Either Democrats or Republicans as individuals may be hypocritical.
user1

I definitely think Republicans are the more hypocritical party. They want to control what we say (don't say Gay), what we do with our bodies, etc. yet they don't want much input from the government at all. They can't have it both ways
user2

I agree Democrats can also be hypocritical but overall I think Republicans are moreso
user2

I think being hypocritical is more obvious in some of those situations. If you want to ban abortion, but encourage your own partner to have an abortion that is obviously hypocritical
user1

It's also easy to be blind to your own biases. I'm not sure that is the same as hypocrisy.
user1

Definitely! Or forcing people to have babies but then not supporting them after they give birth to those babies, cutting funding for programs specifically aimed at helping struggling mothers, and voting against bringing more formula into the US to feed these babies. Not to mention voting against capping the cost of life saving drugs
user2

It is true, many in power are sadly lacking in self awareness, on both sides of the aisle
user2

I agree, banning abortion and then not providing services for people doesn't make any sense.
user1

how do you feel about healthcare for all?
user2

I support healthcare for all.
user1

It makes sense to have a national system and something that is not dependent on employers.
user1