Hello, how are you
user1

I think that it's definitely Republicans. The biggest evidence is the pro-life movement. They say they are pro-life and that's why they're against abortion but they don't follow those same values for anyone else.
user2

Hi! I'm good. How are you?
user2

As for the question above, I would undoubtedly say Republicans. As you said, their rules are "for thee, not for me." They certainly did not care for the lives of immigrant children.
user1

Exactly. Or even American children after they are born, or the vulnerable during the pandemic...
user2

Exactly right. They cannot even fathom wearing a mask because that is somehow restricting "freedom."
user1

I understand that masks are uncomfortable, but I am willing to wear one if it can be the difference between life and death.
user1

The whole Hilary Clinton thing, too.
user1

Yes -- their candidates can do no wrong but everyone else must be jailed or impeached or was wrongly elected
user2

Then you have Trump breaking every law imaginable, taking highly sensitive documents to his estate.
