What is your opinion? I find that they both have hypocritical tendencies but most republicans I know are especially bad about it
user1

Republicans are more hypocritical because more often than not their expressed intentions often don't match their actions. I think they are terribly cynical towards other's efforts trying to help change things for the better.
user2

That actually is an interesting point. I notice where i live, a republican state, that more often than not everything is a double standard. And it's so apparent i dont understand how people pretend it isnt threr
user1

It seems as if they don't really want the country to change for the betterment of the people
user1

Correct they operate on a two set of rules basis
user2

Right. So what makes someone think they are entitled more than any other individual? I can't imagine thinking im better than someone who was just born into a situation different than mine by no choice of their own user1

It
user1

It's all a big show to them. Lying to people when it's all only about money and power
user1

Whole lot of Dem politicians held to a higher standard. Republicans will double down and dig in while Democrats will admit they are wrong and accept responsibility. .
user2