This is a difficult topic to discuss as I tend to lean towards the middle of the road when it comes to democrats and republicans.
user1

Republicans are more hypocritical. I especially can't stand for they call themselves pro life but vote against formula and common sense gun reform
user2

However, I lean democrat and vote democrat because I believe most of the principles of the party are in line with my idealogies.
user1

I understand. And I actually respect moderates a lot because they tend to make choices based on individual issues and not party lines
user2

I guess that makes moderates the least hypocritical of all
user2

I agree, I would say rather than hypocritical I would say Republicans have more inconsistencies within their party which leads to divides
user1

I like the word inconsistencies for it
user2

It is much easier to rope in a radical democrat than a radical conservative but that is just in my opinion.
user1

I tend to be on the left of most issues but I respect anyone whose views are consistent
user2

I also think there are more republicans that have issues in their personal lives which is hypocritical because they are not living up to the principles their party espouses
user1

ðŸ˜Ž
user1

Well I think it's harder to live up to strict conservative ideals in reality
user2

Do you think there will ever be a functioning congress and body of government that can actually accomplish what the country wants?
user1

I don't know and that makes me really sad. They can't even talk to each other anymore
user2

Again, I think there are hypocrites on both sides of the party line, but we as Americans have to be able to find people who will vote and serve the people rather than themselves
user1

I agree it is sad.
user1

It is nice to have an educated discussion about this with someone else, this would be an interesting conversation to have with a Republican to hear their side
user1

I agree. And I think they're
user2

Sorry
user2

I think there are a lot of people on both sides of the aisle who think like this
user2

They just aren't necessarily in Congress
user2

Exactly and those are the type of people we need elected ASAP. We can certainly find reform for gun control and tough issues like abortion with some kind of compromise
user1