I think Republicans are more hypocritical. They say they care about American citizens, but constantly contradict themselves with their actions.
user1

I agree. Quite obviously, Republicans are more hypocritical. For me, there isn't even a question.
user2

My most frustrating example would be McConnell.
user2

The past few weeks have shown me this with all of their decisions.
user1

Do you have any specific examples?
user2

Trying to overturn Roe v Wade and their response to the school shooting, shows me they do not care about Americans or their opinion.
user1

The SCOTUS decision-making is pretty glaring, yes. I had heard that they actually promised not to overturn it when they were being confirmed. And then, in a complete 180, they look to be doing so.
user2

There was a poll that showed 70% of Americans approve of abortions, but they are trying to overturn it anyway.
user1

I think I saw that, too. Unbelievable.
user2

The way they got so many justices on the court kills me.
user2

Bending over backwards to allow their own but block any others.
user2

Their response to the school shooting was even worse. I saw one Republican say teachers should be armed and trained in case of a school shooting. It is like they are afraid to address the gun issue.
user1

Or afraid of not receiving the money from the lobby.
user2

I'm now seeing articles about how the people paid to walk around schools with a gun to protect people are actually just hiding during severe incidents
user2

I heard that some were going to attend some type of NRA convention soon.
user1

Yes, this weekend. I can't imagine how someone could show their face there.
user2

There not even trying to hide their association with each other.
user1

Why would they? They continue to face no consequences.
user2

Sometimes it feels kind of hopeless, but I want to stay hopeful that things will change.
user1