I think the Republicans are the most hypocritical today. They just don't get the media message either.
user1

What do the people think? That issue is perhaps a leading option for the people today.
user1

I believe there are hypocrites on both sides of the aisle, but I believe republicans take thew cake.
user2

What media message? what do you mean?
user2

What the people think is a loaded question; which people are we talking about?
user2

The American people.
user1

That is a wide range of beliefs, what the people want is often subject to how free they are to vote, how easy it is for them to vote, and who is making up their congressional reperesentation.
user2

What do you feel is The American People?
user2

The people who reside in the United States?
user1

They often vote and influence their own legislation.
user1

Yes, but the people in the cities are often showing a different set of beliefs than the people in rural areas. Our divisions are pretty wide right now.
user2

Yes, they do but their legislation can be stalled in Congress to make new laws not even happen, because of partisan politics. It is rarely fair.
user2