Republicans are almost always the most hypocritical bunch.
user1

I agree, you can see it in the most current events
user2

Agreed. Most currently with the "All lives matter," and "pro-life" bit they are pushing.
user1

They push the agenda of banning abortions but will not increase funding for medicaid programs or help with foster care systems.
user1

There is even less help for of color
user1

Well, if 75% of Americans believe in women's rights then how can half of the pols be in favor?
user2

True, that's a very seriousand systemic problems that's been going on for centuries.
user2

Obviously there is an incongruence. There are inconsistencies on both sides, I believe.
user1

However, the biggest, and loudest group is the republicans.
user1

Well, that's always going to be the case, but I feel that it's far more likely that a republican would react negatrively.
user2

True. In my experience with republican people, they have explosive attitudes and go on the defensive quite readily.
user1

As you said, there are inconsitencies on both sides but I agree that Republicans tend to be the loudest and outspoken.
user2

They do, and they are the first to loudly state their opiniopns in inappropriate areas like the grocery store or the barber.
user2

Exactly. A children's birthday party? Sounds like the perfect place for a political conversation.
user1

I don't mind a good debate, but they take it a bit too far and almost evangelize their points of view.
user1

So true. Look at the last Presidential election. The Republican had no idea to debate properly. It was beyond annoying
user2

I've grown to exclude anyone associates in the party whether they were friends or family.
user2

It was hilarious, to be honest.
user1