I think Republicans are much more hypocritical because they constantly flip flop from one position to the next based on how they're being perceived.
user1

I think they are both hypocritical, to be honest, but I would say Republicans are more. For instance, they claim to be in favor of the first ammendment but then complain about protests.
user2

Or, with regard to Covid, they say they shouldn't have to get a vaccine because it's their body their choice. But with regard to abortion, they don't think it should be the woman's choice about her body.
user2

That is a good point and they are definitely things Democrats say that they're for or against only to change the conversation if it doesn't suit them well. I agree about the first amendment question.
user1

I find many Democrats to be wishy-washy. I guess that's not the same as hypocritical, but it kind of is.
user2

Yes or they say they are pro freedom but then pass legislation that is authoritarian. They have laws telling what teachers should teach or pass laws denouncing abortion even though they are against mask wearing. Like you said my body my choice only applies to certain topics.
user1

Yeah, trying to dictate how teachers teach history is crazy. And definitely goes against the first ammendment.
user2

Really. I think we need more than two parties.
user2

Yes it goes against the Constitution
user1