Republicans are the most hypocritical by far. They're constantly talking about how much they love America, then turning around and spitting on the ideals they claim to value.
user1

I would have to say that this is a pretty easy choice. Republicans tend to act like they are the party of "family values", but they're also the party of indiscriminate war, of denying healthcare, of hurting the people who need help the most.
user2

Exactly. Take Trump for example, before him, the Republicans lambasted Obama for the smallest things, like wearing a tan suit. Meanwhile, Trump messes with the economy on Twitter and divulges secrets in the middle of Tweetstorms, and the Republicans are absolutely silent.
user1

Yes, I agree. I think they use this idea of "America" to gloss over how xenophobic they are. "America", to Republicans, tends to mean well-off white people. America is supposed to be a melting pot, correct? Then why don't we EMBRACE diversity?
user2

Sleeps with porn stars, has multiple sexual assault allegations, emboldens white nationalists, and even incited a treasonous insurrection.
user2

But still, all you hear is "What about Benghazi?"
user2

Because if they embrace diversity, it means less power for them. Gerrymandering especially is a disgusting tactic that they use. If everything were actually fair, no Republican would be in power.
user1

Oof, "Benghazi", "Hilary's emails", I got so sick of that crap.
user1

Now, I do believe that Democrats too have a bit of hypocrisy to their actions.
user2

However, it's like comparing a thimble of water to the Pacific Ocean.
user2