I think Republicans are significantly more hypocritical because they consistently say they want to get something done and then stand in the way when it is time to get to work
user1

I think both groups can be considered hypocritical when you consider corporate democrats that are also getting in the way of getting things done that they say they support
user2

Of course both sides can be hypocritical - i agree there
user1

I have issue with Republicans being so blatant about it though. Like when Trump said he had a cheaper and better plan for healthcare than ACA, but never did.
user1

I do also agree that Republicans do seem significantly more hypocritical with their "pro-life" arguments but don't support people after birth and their gun rights initiatives also contradict
user2

Specifically with gun rights - it's so frustrating to hear them offer condolences after the latest school shooting and then fight tooth and nail to make sure guns are as easy to get as ever
user1