Absolutely Republicans they say they hold Christian values so dear but everything they do goes against these values.
user1

I personally feel that both sides are hypocritical, but I think that it is a more common trait amongst Republican's.
user2

Even without "values" they vote against their constituent interests and then tell them that the Radical Left are the bad guys,
user2

That is true Democrats can also be hypocritical turning things around to suit their views.
user1

With the infrastructure bill, many Republican's voted against it and when it passed, took credit for the money going to their state/areas.
user2

I am also still upset the Mitch McConnel (spelling?) refused to let AG Garland have a chance to be vetted for a supreme court seat because an election was 8 months away, but had no
user2