Hello!
user1

I think they are both huge hypocrites. I donâ€™t trust either side.
user2

I think in terms of proving points both sides are hypocritical
user1

wow great minds!
user1

For sure!
user2

I fully agree, each person needs to prove a point and win a favour. you cant look one way without the other following closely in most intances
user1

instances *
user1

Iâ€™ve been a Democrat my whole life, but lately Iâ€™ve been becoming more and more cynical over their policies as well.
user2

Agreed. Especially within the last few years I feel as though political stances hold no bearing anymore. It comes down to common sense as a human with a moral compass
user1

Regardless of which position you hold politically
user1

They say they are for saving the earth and fighting climate change, while getting in bed with big business and big pharmaceutical companies
user2

Yep, its a lose lose for the average american and a huge money grab for governing forces as a whole
user1

Everyone needs their untaxxed funding and they need it now
user1

They say â€œyour body, your choiceâ€ in regards to Roe vs. Wade, while pushing for vaccine mandates.
user2

Im all for the vaccine but I do agree. You cant have your cake and eat it too type of deal
user1

its incredibly biased
user1

Republicans make me sick too. They are in the pockets of special interests too.
user2

Everyone is. No one party is free of degradation I feel. Everyone has their hand in the honey pot
user1

its gross misconduct as a whole
user1

and they arent even trying to hide it anymore. its just lacy malicious teendancies
user1

I wonder how many politicians actually care about their constituents? Seems like very few.
user2

Unless their constituents pay them rewardingly
user1

Yup! Everyone has a price
user2

exactly. Thats why everyone is corrupted. It happens so easily when all you see is green
user1

Guess weâ€™re stuck with what weâ€™ve got. Hope things get better!
user2