Republicans. Their persona is wrapped up in this concept of being good Christians and being nice to their neighbors and doing good for everybody yet all of their political beliefs directly contradict their supposed moral beliefs.
user1

Republicans always pass laws and rules that hurt low income people, the majority of people.
user1

They cut taxes which fund necessary public resources for everyone.
user1

I think any party can technically be as hypocritical as the other, however with the amount of rules and common decency thrown out during the last administration Republicans have shown time and again the lengths they will go to get on top
user2

They give tax breaks to corporations and wealthy people which don't pass the relief onto their customers, instead continue to line their own pockets.
user1

So for sheer magnitude, it's republicans for me
user2

I agree Raxer.
user1

I agree with you as well.
user2