I think democrats because we see things the way we want them but are too afraid to admit our shortcomings. Valuing the right to have an abortion but not the right for our bodies with vaccines.

How can those paradoxes be okay?
user1

I should have free will to abort a fetus but not free will with an experimental vaccine

In my experience, and in listening to republican family members, they seem very critical of democrats and usually aggressive in what they have to say/believe
