I feel republicans are more hypocritical, they are always quick to name out situations about events that take place bad. Republicans will say must be a democrat because this happened. It's always pointing the fingers at democrats. Always talking about race as well, they pull out the race card far to often.

Hi there! Personally, I feel that repubs are more hipocritical than dems. Im not just saying that because I typically vote democratic. They say they want bi-partisn decisions, but then act as oppositonists when issues need to be passed.

I agree with your statement regarding finger pointing. There is simply too much of it going on. And such separation between the two parties. Especially since Voldemort was in office.

Yes I feel republicans mainly care about winning and will lie about things. They do not care when you call them out on being hypocritical either. I find myself seeing so many posts on social media and when I see the posts I read through them, never commenting. I just see so much race card being thrown out and if so and so didn't do this and that.

Never do you see this happening with the democrat parties. It is such a sad thing

Race is definitely an issue in America and they dont seem to care to do anything productive to reduce those issues.
user2

I agree, its not often that you see that happening with dems.

Exactly!! Republicans like to gaslight and create alternate realities, limit voting rights and just overall more bias about so many decisions.
