Republicans. They believe in the death penalty but oppose apportion.
user1

Definitely Republicans. First of all, many of them describe themselves as devout Christians, yet they either pass laws or reject laws that contradict Christian teaching, such as helping the poor, being generous towards strangers, and protecting the Earth.
user2

The death penalty / abortion contradiction is very true.
user2

Also, they will do something unpatriotic and unconstitutional but then claim they are the most patriotic and Constitution-upholding party.
user2

They also claim to be for the people and then the do everything to get out of paying income tax.
user1

For example, not meeting with Merrick Garland when he was a Supreme Court nominee was horribly unpatriotic and disobeyed the Constitution.
user2