Personally I think it's the republicans, but both parties can definitely be hypocritical.

Though to expand upon my own thing: A lot of their actions contradict their own words, and policies. They're pretty roundabout about believing in the countries founding tenants all the time and 'being old fashioned' while generally trying to use their modern takes on religion to rule the government, as one example. Instead of allowing freedom of religion and keeping religion out of politics as intended. One of the more extreme cases.
