I know this will come off bias because I am a democrat, but I would have to say Republicans are more hypocritical
user1

I think Republicans are more hypocritical also.
user2

The main thing that comes to mind is the argument Republicans made about wearing masks saying "my body my choice" and at the same time they want to ban abortion
user1

I think they are when it comes to abortion rights - using being a Christian as a reason to not allow them. I feel they are trying to say that Democrats are not Christians if they believe in abortions or allow them.
user2

Or the most recent situation in Texas. Gun carrying cops avoided approaching an armed gunman but at the same time they argued this could be avoided if teachers carried guns.
user1

I completely agree with you - wearing a mask is to protect yourself and also the people around you and has affected all humanity. The whole pandemic is a human thing, not a political thing.
user2

Yes they tend to lean very heavily on their religion even though there should be separation when it comes to religion. Not everyone is a Christian so not everyone should be held to Christian values.
user1

I agree - if teachers had guns - that is extra training they would need to work and more responsibility and not really part of their job. They would have to keep it locked up and hope that they could get it out in time to use if they ever needed to.
user2

I find your takes very breathtaking! It's nice to speak to someone like minded.
user1

I am trying to think of more examples of Republicans being hypocrites. I'm sure there are countless other examples those are just the big ones that have been on my mind most recently.
user1

I guess I do not understand why they fight against background checks to purchase a gun. I don't really have a big problem with people owning guns, as long as they go through the appropriate channels and legal channels to get them. Also if this would prevent even one shooting or one life it would be worth it.
user2

I live in the south so I understand people wanting guns, say for hunting etc. I do not see any valid reason someone needs an assault weapon. That is where my issue comes in
user1

I think one example if also how worried Texas if about saving childre from abortion, but they don't seem as worried about saving the children in the schools.
user2

That is a really good point! I hadn't even made that connection yet.
user1

I completely agree, I do not see where anyone anywhere needs an assault weapon.
user2

Aside from the military of course.
user2

Yes military is an exception for sure.
