Being a Democrat lately has been uneasy for me. I believe that both Democrats and Republicans have their issues of saying and doing 2 different things.
user1

What do you think?
user1

agree, none is better, each one has its own issues
user2

abuse of power, corruption , religion, gun control, abortions' take any issues and each party is to be blamed
user2

I remember when Republicans tried to impeach Bill Clinton for abuse of power. Now abuse of power isn't even impeachable. Doesn't make sense.
user1

Republicans also called Obama's 365 electoral votes a close race but Trump gets 304 and that was a landslide to them. So crazy!
user1

health care, other social program, restrict the right to vote for minorities: Republicans to be blamed more for these issues
user2

Don't get me started about how Republicans say they are pro-life but they go ahead and cut funding for child and health care and other social programs. Doesn't make sense.
user1

exactly, you read my mind
user2

look at our airports, infrastructures, we are so much behind
user2

sometimes i doubt being developed nation
user2

in this both parties are equally to be blamed
user2

no one is looking at progress of the nation
user2

I feel like they block anything that is beneficial to the American people, (stimulus relief, healthcare reform, infrastructure bills etc)
user1