Well I kind of feel like this is leaning a certain way.
user1

Hello. I don't know that one party has a monopoly on hypocrisy but I seem to notice it more on the Republican side. What do you think?
user2

Yes, while I wouldn't say anyone is immune, it would have to be them
user1

The party of "we want civility but don't have to give any"
user1

Like the part of always talking up the troops and then booing them and cutting health care, or pledging allegiance to someone who does
user1

Or the idea of freedom of religion being used as a bludgeon to force religion on others
user1

Or the idea of having more and more kids but less and less attention given to them
user1

I agree. The first thing that comes to mind for me is the argument that compulsory vaccinations are wrong because the government shouldn't control our bodies, yet they never seem to notice a contradiction with their views on abortion rights.
user2