I think Republicans are the most hypocritical
user1

Well, I think that both parties could be equally hypocritical, because I think it's more about the individual not the party.
user2

They want to ban abortions, but are not interested in helping the poor, giving people assistance.
user1

I definitely hear that and agree, so more than hypocritical maybe just so centered on their party's agenda they can't think logically.
user2

I do understand that some people can be more hypocritcal than others, but the values of the Republican party seems hypocrical to me.
user1

I think a lot of it centers around religion...many republicans are religious and because they read something in the Bible they only care about that one thing....
user2

I agree with both of those points.
user1

And I think even being religious they are missing the point of religion.
user1

So they say abortions are against Gods will because God values human lives, but then they don't make policies that help the people who have the most abortions (poor and underserved)
user2

Exactly. The command of Jesus was to help others, they are completely missing that part. They want everyone to help themselves, but we should help each other
user1

I hear a lot from my family members who are republican as THEY and THEM and because I identify as Democrat, they assume that ANYTHING that the Democratic Party does I will blindly agree with (which isn't true...I use my brain to make my own decisions) but then I see them regurgitation jargon from Fox News not even thinking about whether or not it makes sense.
user2

It all feels so hypocritical to me.
user1

Thank you, I completely agree again. I am a Democrat, but I make my mind up about the issues that are important to me. And yes, there seems to be some blinders on by republicans. they want to believe some news is 100% right without verifying for themselvs
user1

there is a lack of critical thinking that is worrysome.
user1

Yes, I feel like most of their policies support and help white rich males.....which are probably the ones that have their mistresses get abortions anyway to cover it up.
user2