Russian Defense Ministry Releases Footage of Strikes on Ukrainian Positions

The Russian Ministry of Defense has released footage showing the strikes and destruction of a Ukrainian stronghold near Belogorovka. According to the statement, the stronghold was discovered by reconnaissance and subsequently destroyed by precise artillery strikes from the Southern Group of Forces.

The footage reveals drone operators observing the trenches near the stronghold, followed by an artillery strike on the defensive position. Once the smoke cleared, it became evident that a fire had broken out in the stronghold.

Prior to this, Russian forces in the “Center” group had uncovered and neutralized around twenty Ukrainian artillery units in the Krasnolimansk direction. Additionally, a Ukrainian drone was shot down in the area of the Kremenaya village by air defense systems.

This development comes after the United States identified one of the greatest threats to the Ukrainian Armed Forces.
