Introduction

Human Understanding Measured Across National (HUMAN) Surveys combines multiple sources of public opinion data and creates commonly formatted variables. It does not conduct these surveys and using this data requires citing the original sources and in some cases obtaining their permission. The data cannot be used for commercial purposes and attempts must not be made to identify individual respondents. The resource is being made available for replication studies and as a tool for other researchers. The data is being provided as close as possible to its original format and it is up to each user to decide on the most appropriate methods for analysing and using this resource. Analysing multiple data sources requires contending with different survey designs and methods. There are also some duplicated national surveys between the different sources because some share data. Users should consult the original source technical documents and field reports.

Included Variables

Original variables have been recoded for consistency and included alongside common variables, enabling users to combine the data in different ways. This version of HUMAN Surveys focuses on a limited set of variables for social trust, democracy, elections, respondent demographics, and data identification. This codebook explains the following common and recoded variables.

- Social Trust
- Satisfaction with Democracy
- Support for Democracy
- Perceived Electoral Integrity
- Age
- Gender
- Education
- Income Country
- Year
- Survey

Survey Sources

Analysing more respondents, countries, and surveys provides greater variation and enables answering new research questions. Combining data from multiple sources enables us to track trends over time, repeat models across different surveys, and increase both the reliability and generalisability of findings. HUMAN Surveys aims to make this kind of research a little bit easier for others to undertake. This version combines respondent data from the following survey sources.

- Afrobarometer
- AmericasBarometer
- Arab Barometer
- AsiaBarometer
- Asian Barometer Survey
- European Social Survey
- European Values Study
- Latinobarómetro
- World Values Survey
- International Social Survey Programme
- Comparative Study of Electoral Systems
- New Europe Barometer
- New Russia Barometer
- Voice of the People Series
- Consolidation of Democracy in Central and Eastern Europe
- Eurobarometer – Standard and Special
- Eurobarometer - Applicant and Candidate Countries
- Eurobarometer – Central and Eastern
- Australian Election Study

Naming Conventions

Variable names try to follow some conventions for clarity and consistency. Prefixes with underscores are used to group variables by type or topic, as summarised in Table 1. These prefixes are then followed by a three-digit number. The first number groups variables by survey item, while the two remaining numbers indicate the response scale. If these last two numbers are 99, then it indicates the number of possible responses or the variable values are over 100. Finally, a letter is added at the end of recoded original variables to distinguish between different versions of survey items with the same number of responses. There is usually no logic or meaning to these suffix letters and they are used sequentially as needed. Suffix letters are not used with common variables. Some examples: all variables starting with 'sd_1' represent respondent age; the common age variable is 'sd_103' and it uses three age categories; 'sd_106a' is a recoded version of age with six categories, and 'sd_199a' is a recoded version of age in years.

Table 1: Summary of variable prefixes and definitions

Prefix	Topic	Examples
at_	Attitudes	Social Trust
de_	Democracy	Satisfaction with / Support for Democracy
id_	Identification	Country, Year, Survey Round
sd_	Socio-Demographics	Age, Education, Income

Missing Values

All non-valid or unusable responses were recoded into four common missing values wherever possible, which are outlined with example responses in Table 2. The first two (do not know, refused) are active replies from the respondents indicating that they were asked the question but did not provide a valid answer. The second two (not applicable, missing) indicate that the respondents were either not asked the question or that it is not possible to otherwise classify the missing data.

Table 2: Common recoded missing values, labels, and examples

Value	Label	Examples
.a	do not know	- does not understand question - does not remember or know - cannot choose or decide - hard to say
.b	refused	- decline or refuse to answer - no response - no answer
.c	not applicable	- not applicable - question not asked - item skipped
.	missing	- unspecified missing data - no entry at all - unclear or illegible entry

Social Trust

These survey items measure respondent trust of other people in their country.

at_002 | Social Trust (Common)

This common variable distinguishes between respondents that generally trust most people and those that would be more careful. Most questions do not specify the population of other people, while some specify others in the same country. Some specify the neighbourhood or community. Responses that 'it depends' and midpoints on scales were recoded as 'be careful'. Table 3 summarises how other variables were recoded. 0 = be careful, 1 = trust others

Country

These variables indicate the survey country, with values compared in Table 7.

id_100 | Country Code (Common)

This common variable uses three-digit numerical codes to represent countries. Values come from the International Standards Organization (ISO) 3166-1 numeric standard.

id_101 | Country Name (Common)

This common variable uses country names slightly modified from the English short names in the ISO 3166-2 standard.

id_320 | Survey Type (Common)

This common variable distinguishes between standard nationally-representative surveys and other kinds of surveys, such as those oversampling demographic groups. 1 = standard, 2 = youth, 3 = employed, 4 = unemployed

Age

These survey items measure respondent age.

sd_103 | Age Categories (Common)

This common variable represents age using three categories. 1 = under 30, 2 = 30 to 50, 3 = over 50. Category groupings are not always perfect because some surveys use different age divisions, meaning that some values may represent close approximations within a few years. Table 10 summarises how other variables were recoded. 1 = under 30, 2 = 30 to 50, 3 = over 5

sd_199 | Age in Years (Common)
Most survey items are in years, but some surveys use year or date of birth. These values are calculated by subtracting the birth date from the survey date or year, resulting in non-integer numbers that are then rounded to an integer.

Gender

This survey item indicates respondent sex.

sd_202 | Gender (Common)

This common variable indicates whether respondents are male or female. The same or very similar question is used in all sources. 1 = male, 2 = female

Education

These survey items measure respondent education.

sd_303 | Education Level (Common)

This common variable categorises respondents within three educational levels. These levels were sometimes estimated based on the age respondents stopped their education or the total years of education respondents indicated they had completed. The education levels of respondents still studying were estimated using age variables if available. The variable thus may not always be completely accurate where these estimates were necessary. Table 11 summarises how other variables were recoded. 1 = primary or lower, 2 = secondary or vocational, 3 = tertiary or higher.

Income

These survey items measure respondent income. Most measure household income.

sd_403 | Income Groups (Common)

This common variable categorises respondents into three income groups. It was created by supplementing a three-category variable (sd_403a) with the common income quartile variable (sd_404) using merged middle quartiles, as outlined in Table 12. The aim was for values to approximate the lowest 25%, middle 50%, and highest 25% within each country-survey observation. These exact percentages are not always achieved so the variable represents an approximate income grouping. 1 = lower Income, 2 = middle income, 3 = higher income

Table 12: Recoding of values to create common income group variable

	Lower	Middle	Higher
sd_403a	1	2	3
sd_404	1	2 – 3	4

sd_403a | Income Categories

Household income. 1 = low or medium low, 2 = middle or medium high, 3 = high

sd_404 | Income Quartiles (Common)

This common variable combines other income variables by dividing them into approximate quartiles within country-survey observations. This means respondents' quartiles represent their position relative to other respondents within the same country within the same survey round. This process was applied to variables with answer scales over four and the values are often estimates of quartiles. 1 = lowest quartile, 2 = middle lowest, 3 = middle highest, 4 = highest quartile

sd_404a | Income Quartiles

A harmonised variable constructed to approximate quartiles. 1 = lowest quartile, 2 = second lowest, 3 = second highest, 4 = highest quartile

sd_404b | Without Cash Income

In the past twelve months, how often have you or your family: gone without a cash income? 1 = always, 2 = frequently, 3 = occasionally, 4 = never

sd_404c | Subjective Income

Does the salary you receive and your total family income allow you to satisfactorily cover your needs? Which of the following situations do you find yourself in? 1 = does not cover them, there are great difficulties; 2 = does not cover them, there are difficulties; 3 = covers them alright, without great difficulty; 4 = covers them well, I can save

sd_405a | Income Quintiles

Household income quintile appropriate to the respondent. 1 = lowest 20%, 2 = second lowest 20%, 3 = middle 20%, 4 = second highest 20%, 5 = highest 20%. Alternative in income levels: 1 = low, 2 = medium low, 3 = medium, 4 = medium high, 5 = high

Over the past year, how often, if ever, have you or anyone in your family gone without: A cash income? 1 = always, 2 = many times, 3 = several times, 4 = just once or twice, 5 = never

Categories of income. Values represent different amount ranges depending on the survey round and county. See original survey documentation for specific details. 0 = no income or lowest category

sd_499a | Income Amount

Appendix B

Table 14 provides the names of original source variables that were used to create common variables. Wildcards (*) indicate multiple variables with the same prefix or suffix. The '[coded]' entries indicate that variable values were defined manually with details from field reports or technical documents. Surveys are listed with acronyms as defined on page 24 in Table 9. Some longer variable names extend over multiple rows.
