v48	GROUP 3: Let me start by asking you about the good outcomes: the types of government you would actually like to see in Syria. I'm going to read you the whole list of options. When I'm done, I want you to tell me how many of them would be good for Syria. Don't tell me which ones, just tell me how many. I'll read the list twice. Please keep count on your fingers, but don't show me. [Interviewer: turn your body 90 degrees and read the list twice, slowly. Mark Group 1, Group 2, and Group 4 as "Not Applicable." Do not read "No Answer."]
	GROUP 3 ONLY	How many? (0-4)	(Not Applicable)	(No Answer)
...x	How many of these options would be good for Syria: Democracy with a strong parliament; a system in which political parties are illegal; the Assad government; a military government	_____	-97	-99

v49	GROUP 3: Let me ask you about a few more options. Now tell me if you think these are tolerable: options you don't think are ideal for Syria, but which you would accept if you had to. I'm going to read you the whole list of options. When I'm done, I want you to tell me how many of them would be acceptable for Syria. Don't tell me which ones, just tell me how many. I'll read the list twice. Please keep count on your fingers, but don't show me. *[Interviewer: turn your body 90 degrees and read the list twice, slowly.
