ICPSR PROCESSING NOTES FOR # 7250

Political Change in Britain, 1963-1970

1) Study Overview: This study surveyed both cross-section and panel samples between 1963 and 1970, in an effort to analyze political change in Great Britain. Interviewing was conducted in four waves: the first wave in 1963, an election-free year, and the next three waves subsequent to the general elections in 1964, 1966, and 1970. The present study contains the master file bringing together the data resulting from the 1963 national cross-section sample, the 1964 and 1966 electorate samples, and 11 additional panels resulting from re-interviewing respondents from one or more of the three samples listed above. Also available through ICPSR are three subsets of these data: POLITICAL CHANGE IN BRITAIN, 1963 (ICPSR 7232) presents data obtained from the 1963 national cross-section sample, POLITICAL CHANGE IN BRITAIN, 1964 (ICPSR 7233) includes the interviews administered to the 1964 electorate sample, and POLITICAL CHANGE IN BRITAIN, 1966 (ICPSR 7234) contains data resulting from the 1966 electorate sample.

2) Data Format: The original OSIRIS data have been reformatted into a rectangular file with one record per case, in order to be compatible with current statistical software packages. Consequently, codebook column locations do not necessarily apply to the current data.

3) Codebooks: The codebooks maintain much of their original order and content:
   - Codebook I: Introduction and Codebook
   - Codebook II: Questionnaires and Notes
   - Codebook III: Cross Reference Lists and Frequencies

The 1963 Cross-section Sample of Study of Political Change in Britain 1963-1970 is the data base for the frequencies reported in this frequency addendum. This sample is ICPR Study Number 7232. The frequency entries are arranged sequentially according to the variable number order of Study 7232. We have provided a table of contents which identifies for each item both the ICPR 7232 variable number and its master codebook counterpart. This table of contents is arranged in the order of the master codebook variable numbers. To find the frequencies for a variable (say V62) in the master codebook, look in the first column (under REFERENCE NO.) for 62, then look at the page indicated (in this instance 7) for the frequencies.

The N for this sample is 2009.

ICPR Study Number 7232 represents the 1963 Cross-section Sample of the Study of Political Change in Britain 1963-1970. This study (7232) is a subset of the comprehensive data file. It comprises 2009 respondents and 339 variables. These variables are all the original items which were included in the 1963 questionnaire. They are numbered 2001 - 2339 to avoid confusion with the variable numbers in the comprehensive codebook and data file.

To facilitate use of ICPR Study Number 7232 we have created two cross reference lists. These lists contain the same information but are organized differently. The first list is organized in comprehensive file reference number order; the second is arranged in Study Number 7232 variable number order. Two possible uses of these lists are:

1. To identify the variable number in Study Number 7232 of a variable which has been located in the comprehensive codebook--

   one would look for the appropriate number in the first list (in reference number order) under the column heading labelled 'REF'. The corresponding variable number for Study 7232 would be found in the column labelled 'VAR'.

2. To identify the reference number in the comprehensive codebook of a variable from Study 7232--

   one would look for the appropriate number in the second list (in variable number order) under the column heading labelled 'VAR'. The corresponding reference number for the comprehensive codebook would be found in the column labelled 'REF'.

ICPR Study Number 7233 represents the 1964 Electorate Sample of the Study of Political Change in Britain 1963-1970. This study (7233) is a subset of the comprehensive data file. It comprises 1769 respondents (weighted to 1817.5) and 300 variables. These variables are all the original items which were included in the 1964 questionnaire. They are numbered 3001 - 3300 to avoid confusion with the variable numbers in the comprehensive codebook and data file.

To facilitate use of ICPR Study Number 7233 we have created two cross reference lists. These lists contain the same information but are organized differently. The first list is organized in comprehensive file reference number order; the second is arranged in Study Number 7233 variable number order. Two possible uses of these lists are:

1. To identify the variable number in Study Number 7233 of a variable which has been located in the comprehensive codebook--

   one would look for the appropriate number in the first list (in reference number order) under the column heading labelled 'REF'. The corresponding variable number for Study 7233 would be found in the column labelled 'VAR'.

2. To identify the reference number in the comprehensive codebook of a variable from Study 7233--

   one would look for the appropriate number in the second list (in variable number order) under the column heading labelled 'VAR'. The corresponding reference number for the comprehensive codebook would be found in the column labelled 'REF'.

The 1964 Electorate Sample of Study of Political Change in Britain 1963-1970 is the data base for the frequencies reported in this frequency addendum . This sample is ICPR Study Number 7233. The frequency entries are arranged sequentially according to the variable number order of Study 7233. We have provided a table of contents which identifies for each item both the ICPR 7233 variable number and its master codebook counterpart. This table of contents is arranged in the order of the master codebook variable numbers. To find the frequencies for a variable (say V63) in the master codebook, look in the first column (under REFERENCE NO.) for 63, then look at the page indicated (in this instance 3) for the frequencies.

The N for this sample is 1769, weighted to 1817.5.

The frequencies for the 'L' questions (see Note 10 of the master codebook) are reported wherever possible for all respondents in Study 7233 regardless of whether they answered the questions in 1963 or 1964.

ICPR Study Number 7234 represents the 1966 Electorate Sample of the Study of Political Change in Britain 1963-1970. This study (7234) is a sub-set of the comprehensive data file. It comprises 1874 respondents (weighted to 1898.6) and 261 variables. These variables are all the original items which were included in the 1966 questionnaire. They are numbered 4001 - 4261 to avoid confusion with the variable numbers in the comprehensive codebook and data file.

To facilitate use of ICPR Study Number 7234 we have created two cross reference lists. These lists contain the same information but are organized differently. The first list is organized in comprehensive file reference number order; the second is arranged in Study Number 7234 variable number order. Two possible uses of these lists are:

1. To identify the variable number in Study Number 7234 of a variable which has been located in the comprehensive codebook--

   one would look for the appropriate number in the first list (in reference number order) under the column heading labelled 'REF'. The corresponding variable number for Study 7234 would be found in the column labelled 'VAR'.

2. To identify the reference number in the comprehensive codebook of a variable from Study 7234--

   one would look for the appropriate number in the second list (in variable number order) under the column heading labelled 'VAR'. The corresponding reference number for the comprehensive codebook would be found in the column labelled 'REF'.

The 1966 Electorate Sample of Study of Political Change in Britain 1963-1970 is the data base for the frequencies reported in the frequency addendum. This sample is ICPR Study Number 7234. The frequency entries are arranged sequentially according to the variable number order of Study 7234. We have provided a table of contents which identifies for each item both the ICPR 7234 variable number and its master codebook counterpart. This table of contents is arranged in the order of the master codebook variable numbers. To find the frequencies for a variable (say V64) in the master codebook, look in the first column (under REFERENCE NO.) for 64, then look at the page indicated (in this instance 3) for the frequencies.

The N for this sample is 1874, weighted to 1898.6.

The frequencies for the 'N' questions (see Note 10 of the master codebook) are reported wherever possible for all respondents in Study 7234 regardless of whether they answered the questions in 1963 or 1964 or 1966.
