Please list citations for specific studies that employ particular transparency practices or practices that otherwise enhance the interpretability, evaluability, credibility, or quality of the research.

To the anonymous poster tho pointed out the chapter by A. Lutnick:
Thank you for providing a specific, useful example; that's greatly appreciated. It would be even more helpful if you elaborated in a couple of sentences on the practices used by this author to enhance the interpretability, evaluability, credibility, or quality of her research and in what sense you found those practices particularly helpful. Thanks again.
