Qualitative Transparency Deliberations

hosted by the Social Science Research Institute at Duke University on behalf of the APSA Section for Qualitative and Multi-Method Research
https://www.qualtd.net/

Exemplary research transparency in content-analytic work

https://www.qualtd.net/viewtopic.php?f=24&t=209

Page 1 of 1

Exemplary research transparency in content-analytic work

Posted: Sun Jan 08, 2017 4:31 pm
by TimButhe
What published content-analytic work do you consider to be exemplary with respect to its research transparency? What makes it exemplary?

Re: Exemplary research transparency in content-analytic work

Posted: Mon Jan 16, 2017 6:16 pm
by koremenos

> *TimButhe wrote:*What published content-analytic work do you consider to be exemplary with respect to its research transparency? What makes it exemplary?

I really like the way Paul Poast goes about coding and discussing his coding. Poast's (2011) study illustrates the point that the absence of systematic, reliable data on failed negotiations is an obstacle not easily overcome. Poast (2011) addresses this problem for one narrow sub-issue area: military alliances. In his context, he can rely on decades of archival research already conducted by historians and draw on a variety of published diplomatic histories to obtain information on members of the population of near-misses.

Powered by phpBB® Forum Software © phpBB Limited
https://www.phpbb.com/