Stephen (3) Jack (2) David (1)
Dear Prof. Chaffee, Prof. Dennis, Prof. Sears, and their research assistants:

A. Since our 1980 Wisconsin Political Socialization Study has nearly 2000 variables now, I have created three indices of all the variables for convenience. Those indices are:

1. Codebook-ordered Variable Index

This is useful, when you want to:

a) List necessary variables in order, for a SPSS 'Get Archive' statement.

b) Distinguish the variables asked only in one or two waves from those asked in all three waves.

2. Alphabetical-ordered Variable Index

This is useful, when you want to:

a) Know the full question texts of the variables abbreviated in computer printouts.

3. Subject Index

This is useful, when you want to:

a) Select the variables necessary for your analysis.

b) Create new variables or measurements from the original ones.

B. How to Use the Indices

	W1	W2	W3
1. NATINT	/	1	1

This means that the variable 'NATINT' was asked in the first question to both child and parent respondents in Wave 2 and 3. Thus, you can access to this variable, using CNATINT2 (Child, W2), PNATINT2 (Parent, W2), CNATINT3 (Child,W3) and PNATINT3 (parent, W3).

2.

	W1	W2	W3
PCHICAN	A12	15	16
CMOMCAN	*12	*17	*18

This means that PCHICAN was asked only to parents in all three waves; CMOMCAN was asked only to children three times. Therefore, there are six names created from PCHICAN and CMOMCAN: PCHICAN1, PCHICAN2, PCHICAN3, CMOMCAN1, CMOMCAN2, and CMOMCAN3.

CMOMCAN	*12	*17	*18

* indicates that in old codebooks (W1 and W2), the variable was named inconsistently. In this case, for example, this variable was named 'CMONCAN1' in Wave 1 and 'CMOMCAN2' in Wave 2 codebook. I straightened out this type of inconsistency. Thus, consistant variable names can be used when you want to access to the new tapes I have sent to you. However, you have to use old inconsistent names if you want to use the old tape.

C. If You Want to Have More Copies of These Indices....

I put these indices on the tape I have sent to you. In order to access to this information, use

@ASG,TV TapeName,U9V,TapeNumber

@MOVE TapeName., 12 (13 or 14)

If you find some mistakes or have further questions, please let me know.
