Preface Version 3.00

This document contains the extended codebook for the updated MACIMIDE Global Expatriate Dual Citizenship Dataset, version 3.00 covering data up to 1 January 2018.

This document explains the coding employed in the dataset and also contains other metadata related to the Dataset, including the methodology employed.

This document also lists the various legislative sources (with publicly available hyperlinks where possible) and the relevant legal provisions supporting the coding.

Finally, this document lists the changes to the Dataset in the different versions and the works referenced for the coding.

How to cite the Dataset:

1. Codebook

1.1. Country identifiers

1.1.1 Country Name

Variable: country	Label: Country Name	Type: Text/Alphabetic	Range: (n/a)
Source: United Nations Member States List[1]

The MACIMIDE Global Expatriate Dual Citizenship Dataset contains reference for 200 countries. The country variable refers to the name assigned to these countries. In principle, the designation employed by the United Nations, as reflected in its list of Member States,[2] is followed.

As with the ISO3 and ISO2 variables, the country variable reflects the name of the country on 1 January 2018, or where the country has ceased to exist during the reference period, the name under which it was last known.

For a number of countries, the name commonly used name in English is used instead of the official name. This is the case, for example, for:

- Bolivia, officially known as the Plurinational State of Bolivia;
- Brunei, officially known as Brunei Darussalam;
- Iran, officially known as the Islamic Republic of Iran;
- Laos, officially known as the Lao People's Democratic Republic;
- Macedonia, known at the UN as The Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia;
- Moldova, officially known as the Republic of Moldova;
- North Korea, officially known as the Democratic People's Republic of Korea;
- Republic of the Congo, known at the UN as Congo;
- South Korea, officially known as the Republic of Korea;
- Russia, officially known as the Russian Federation;
- Syria, officially known as the Syrian Arab Republic;
- Tanzania, officially known as the United Republic of Tanzania;
- Venezuela, officially known as the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela;
- Vietnam, known at the UN as Viet Nam.

Furthermore, a number of territories not officially recognised by the United Nations as a (Member) State, but which have been deemed relevant for the study of citizenship, are included in the Dataset. They are Taiwan and the Vatican City.

1.1.2 ISO3 Country Code

Variable: ISO3	Label: ISO3 country code	Type: Text/Alphabetic	Range: AAA – ZZZ
Source: Codes for the representation of names of countries and their subdivisions – Part 1: Country codes, ISO 3166-1 alpha-3

The ISO3 variable identifies the relevant country for an entry. The values of ISO3 consist of three letters, as defined in the ISO 3166-1 alpha-3 standard, published by the International Organisation for Standardization. In principle, the ISO 3116-1 alpha-3 code of a country as it is defined on 1 January 2018 is the value used to represent the relevant countries for ISO3 for the entire reference period. This has a number of (minor) consequences.

Firstly, changes in ISO 3166-1 alpha-3 code of countries during the period of reference, particularly due to name changes, are not reflected in this variable. This is the case, for example, for:

- Benin (BEN), formerly known as Dahomey (DHY);
- Burkina Faso (BFA), formerly known as Upper Volta (HVO);
- the Democratic Republic of the Congo (COD), formerly known as Zaire (ZAR);
- Myanmar (MMR), formerly known as Burma (BUR);
- Philippines (PHL), previously assigned the code PHI;
- Romania (ROU), previously assigned the code ROM;
- Timor-Leste (TLS), formerly known as East Timor (TMP);
- Zimbabwe (ZWE), formerly known as (Southern) Rhodesia (RHO);

Secondly, countries which have ceased to exist in the period of reference will retain the ISO 3166-1 alpha-3 code last assigned to them. This is the case for:

- Czechoslovakia (CSK), split into the Czech Republic(CZE) and Slovakia (SVK);
- German Democratic Republic (DDR), dissolved by the unification of Germany (DEU);
- Serbia and Montenegro (SCG), split into Serbia (SRB) and Montenegro (MNE);
- Soviet Union (SUN), succeeded under international law by Russia (RUS);
- Yugoslavia (YUG), split into Bosnia and Herzegovina (BIH), Croatia (HRV), Macedonia (MKD), Serbia and Montenegro (SCG, see above), and Slovenia (SVN).

1.1.3 ISO2 Country Code

Variable: ISO2	Label: ISO2 country code	Type: Text/Alphabetic	Range: AA – ZZ
Source: Codes for the representation of names of countries and their subdivisions – Part 1: Country codes, ISO 3166-1 alpha-2

As with the ISO3 variable, the ISO2 identifies the relevant country for an entry, and is based on the ISO 3166-1 alpha-2 standard, published by the International Organisation for Standardization.

As with the ISO3 variable, the ISO 3166-1 alpha-2 code of a country as it is defined on 1 January 2018 is the value used to represent the relevant countries for ISO2 for the entire reference period. Thus, the ISO2 variable will not accurately reflect changes in ISO 3166-1 alpha-2 code assignments for the respective countries. This is the case for Burkina Faso, Benin, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Myanmar, Timor-Leste, and Zimbabwe. Similarly, for countries, which have ceased to exist during the reference period (i.e. Czechoslovakia, German Democratic Republic, Serbia and Montenegro, Soviet Union, and Yugoslavia), the ISO 3166-1 alpha-2 code last assigned to the former state is used.

1.1.4 Country Code

Variable: country_code	Label: Country Code	Type: Numeric	Range: 000 – 999
Source: Codes for the representation of names of countries and their subdivisions – Part 1: Country codes, ISO 3166-1 numeric

Finally, each country is also assigned with a country code. This variable, country_code, is derived from the ISO 3166-1 numeric code assigned to the respective country. In principle, the ISO 3166-1 numeric code assigned to the respective country on 1 January 2018 is used. In the case of countries, which have ceased to exist during the reference period, the code last assigned to them is used.

It is important to note that, under the ISO 3166-1 standard, ISO 3166-1 numeric codes are assigned based on territory. Changes in the territory of a country results in the assignment of a new ISO 3166-1 numeric code. This affects the country_code assigned to the relevant countries, as the change of ISO 3166-1 numeric code due to territorial changes are not reflected in this Dataset. This applies in particular for the following countries, which have experienced territorial change:

- Ethiopia (231), formerly 230, assigned after the separation of Eritrea (232);
- Germany (276), assigned after the unification of West Germany (280) and East Germany (278);
- Panama (591), formerly 590, assigned after the addition of the territory of the Panama Canal Zone (594);
- Russia (643), assigned after the dissolution of the Soviet Union (810) as its successor under international law;
- Sudan (729), formerly 736, assigned after the separation of South Sudan (728);
- Yemen (887), assigned after the merge of Democratic Yemen (720) and Yemen (886);

1.2. Additional country information

1.2.1 Dependency code

Variable: dependency_code	Label: Dependency Code	Type: Numeric	Range: 000 – 999
Source: Codes for the representation of names of countries and their subdivisions – Part 1: Country codes, ISO 3166-1 numeric

The temporal starting point of the MACIMIDE Global Expatriate Dual Citizenship Dataset is 1 January 1960. However, not all of the countries examined exist in 1960. Many of these countries were former colonies, which attained independence sometime in the latter half of 1960 (and thus were not counted towards the reporting year of 1960). The dependency_code variable tracks the 'parent country' for these countries.

This variable allows for inter alia comparison of dual citizenship regimes between the former 'parent' country and its former 'colonies'.

Example: Gambia (ISO3 numeric code: 270) has a dependency_code value of 826, corresponding to the United Kingdom.

1.2.2 World region

Variable: world_region	Label: World Region	Type: Numeric	Range: 1 – 6
Source: Based on United Nations Statistics Division's Composition of macro geographical (continental) regions, geographical sub-regions, and selected economic and other groupings (see http://unstats.un.org/unsd/methods/m49/m49regin.htm)

The world_region variable is assigned to each country based on its macro geographical (i.e. continental) location. This division is based on the regional assignment by the United Nations Statistics Division. The code/value assigned to the world_region variable differs from the UNSD's codes, in that the following values are assigned based on the continental location of a country:

1. Africa
2. Asia
3. Europe
4. Latin America and the Caribbean
5. North America
6. Oceania

This variable allows for comparison of the dual citizenship position between countries in the same (world) region, as well as comparisons between regions.

Example: France has a world_region value of 3 (Europe), and Mexico a value of 6 (Latin America).

Missing in UNSD code: Czechoslovakia, German Democratic Republic, Serbia and Montenegro, Soviet Union and Yugoslavia. These have all been coded as world region 3 (Europe).

1.3. Dual citizenship variables

1.3.1 Year

Variable: year	Label: Year	Type: Numeric	Range: 1960 – 2018
Source: (n/a)

The year variable reflects the year in which the dual citizenship position of a country is assessed. The MACIMIDE Global Expatriate Dual Citizenship Dataset starts from the year 1960 and ends at the year 2018 (as of version 3.00).

N.B. The dualcit variable (see below) and its derivates are based on the legislation and practice in a country on the 1st of January of the reference year. Thus, changes in legislation affecting the dualcit value on e.g. 5 March will only be reflected in the dualcit value of the subsequent year.

1.3.2 Dual citizenship (categorical)

Variable: dualcit_cat	Label: Dual citizenship (categorical)	Type: Numeric	Possible values: 000, 110, 111, 112, 210, 211, 212, 220, 310, 320, 330, 999
Source: see Methodology and the individual Country descriptions

The dualcit_cat variable is the central variable of the MACIMIDE Global Expatriate Dual Citizenship Dataset. Its values may be used to interpret, in broad lines, the position of a country with regards to expatriate dual citizenship.

The dualcit_cat variable reflects what consequences the legislation and legal practice of a country attaches to the voluntary acquisition of a foreign citizenship. The value of this variable depends on a number of criteria, including whether a citizen of the reference country who voluntarily obtains a foreign citizenship automatically loses – in principle – the citizenship of the origin country, and whether a citizen of the reference country can renounce that citizenship (see methodology and individual country descriptions for more details).

Note that the value assigned to dualcit_cat reflects the position of the country on the 1st of January of the reference year. Any subsequent changes in legislation will be reflected in the dualcit_cat value of the following year.

The possible values for the dualcit_cat variable are the following:

Automatic loss (100 – 112)
110	Automatic loss of citizenship of origin country.
111	Automatic loss of citizenship of origin country, and the origin country is Party to Chapter 1 of the Strasbourg Convention.[3]
112	Automatic loss of citizenship of origin country, and the origin country is Party to Chapter 1 of the Strasbourg Convention, as well to the Second Protocol.[4]
No automatic loss, renunciation possible (210 – 220)
210	No automatic loss of citizenship of origin country, but renunciation of citizenship of origin country is possible.
211	No automatic loss of citizenship of origin country, but renunciation of citizenship of origin country is possible. However, origin country is Party to Chapter 1 of the Strasbourg Convention.
212	No automatic loss of citizenship of origin country, but renunciation of citizenship of origin country is possible. However, origin country is Party to Chapter 1 of the Strasbourg Convention, as well as to the Second Protocol.
220	No automatic loss of birthright citizenship of origin country, but renunciation of citizenship of origin country is possible. Automatic loss of citizenship of origin country for persons who have acquired citizenship of origin country by naturalisation.
No automatic loss and renunciation not possible (310 – 330)
310	No automatic loss of citizenship of origin country, and renunciation of citizenship of origin country is not possible.
320	No automatic loss of birthright citizenship of origin country, and renunciation of citizenship of origin country is not possible. Automatic loss of citizenship of origin country for persons who have acquired citizenship of origin country by naturalisation.
330	No automatic loss of citizenship of origin country. Renunciation of citizenship of origin country is only possible for persons who have acquired citizenship of the origin country by naturalisation.
Miscellaneous values
000	Country does not exist on 1 January of the reference year.
999	Rules of loss of citizenship of origin country are unknown.

1.3.3 Dual citizenship (grouped)

Variable: dualcit_grouped	Label: Dual citizenship (grouped)	Type: Numeric	Possible values: 0, 1, 2, 3, 9
Source: recode of dualcit_cat

The dualcit_grouped variable is a recoding of the dualcit_cat variable. This variable is used for broad comparisons of the dual citizenship positions of the various countries. The possible values reflect whether the legislation of a country, in a given reference year, provides for the automatic loss of the origin citizenship (1), for no automatic loss but the possibility to renounce the origin citizenship (2), or for no automatic loss and no renunciation possibility of the origin citizenship (3).

The possible values for the dualcit_grouped variable are the following:

dualcit_cat	dualcit_grouped	Main rule
110, 111, 112	1	Automatic loss of citizenship of origin country.
210, 211, 212, 220	2	No automatic loss of citizenship of origin country, but renunciation of citizenship of origin country is possible.
310, 320, 330	3	No automatic loss of citizenship of origin country, and renunciation of citizenship of origin country is not possible.
000	0	Country does not exist on 1 January of the reference year.
999	9	Rules of loss of citizenship of origin country are unknown.

1.3.4 Dual citizenship (binary)

Variable: dualcit_binary	Label: Dual citizenship (binary)	Type: Numeric	Possible values: 0, 1, 2, 9
Source: recode of dualcit_cat

The dualcit_binary variable is a recoding of the dualcit_cat variable. This variable is used for broad comparisons of the dual citizenship positions of the various countries. The possible values reflect whether the legislation of a country, in a given reference year, provides for the automatic loss of the origin citizenship (1) or not (2).

The possible values for the dualcit_binary variable are the following:

dualcit_grouped	dualcit_binary	Main rule
1	1	Automatic loss of citizenship of origin country.
2, 3	2	No automatic loss of citizenship of origin country.
0	0	Country does not exist on 1 January of reference year.
9	9	Rules of loss of citizenship of origin country are unknown.

2. Data sources

The following section contains the legislative sources used in compiling the data for the MACIMIDE Global Expatriate Dual Citizenship Dataset.

2.1. Data sources (laws)

Here we list all legislation sources used for the coding of the dual citizenship provisions. For each country, the legal source used for the data will be provided, including the year in which the law was adopted or entered into force (n.b. this is not (always) equal to the reference year in which that legal document served as a source, as the reference year refers to the rules applicable on the 1st of January of the reference year).

For each reference source, the official name of the legislation in the official language of the country will be provided (except where this is unknown). Where the legal document is freely available online, a URL will also be provided. Furthermore, the title of the legal document will be translated in English and, where available, supplied with a URL. Exceptionally, where the translated document is not in English, the title of the legal document in the translated language (French or Spanish) will also be provided (with accompanying URL).

2.2. Data sources (articles)

Here we provide for each country-year precise legal source of the provided information with a standardized identifier.

First we indicate whether the information can be found in the Constitution (C), in the National law (N), in a national Decree (D) or in a Treaty (T).

Second, we also indicated the YEAR in which the Constitution or Nationality Law has been adopted. Note that these years refer to the year of adoption of the original Constitution or Nationality law, not to the year of subsequent amendments. Also note that this does not refer to the reference year of the dataset, as this may differ due to the methodology employed.

Third, we include the specific article of the Constitution or Nationality law in which the relevant provision can be found.

For example:

- For Brazil, the code C1988(12.4.II) refers to the Constitution of Brazil, Article 12, paragraph 4, under II.
- For Canada, the code N1977(9.1.a) refers the Canadian Citizenship Act of 1977, Article 9(1) under a.
- For the Netherlands, the code N1985(15.a) refers to the Nationality Act from 1985, Article 15 under a.

If a country does not have explicit rules on the loss of citizenship and/or on voluntary renunciation of citizenship, we only include the reference to the relevant legal source.

If a country does not exist on 1 January of a given year, we indicate this by ‘n.a.’ (‘not applicable’).

If no information can be found on relevant provisions, we indicate this by ‘unknown’.

	1992	1994	unknown	Prior to the adoption of the 1994 Law on Citizenship, the application of the 1919 Law on Latvian Citizenship was restored by a Resolution of the Supreme Council of 1991. This Resolution precluded dual citizenship (section 2.3), but does not govern the loss of the Latvian citizenship. A separate Resolution in 1991 stated that inter alia section 2.3 did not apply to Latvians who obtained a foreign citizenship wile residing abroad between 17 June 1940 and 21 August 1991.
	1995	2013	N1994(23.1)	It should be noted that, while Article 9 of the 1994 Law on Citizenship (prior to its amendment in 2013) does not tolerate dual citizenship, no automatic loss of Latvian citizenship was prescribed for the voluntary acquisition of a foreign nationality. The Latvian citizenship may be withdrawn under Article 24.

		Updated coding and article reference Czech Republic 2014-2015: 110 → 210.
	August / September 2015	Changed name into 'MACIMIDE Global Expatriate Dual Citizenship Dataset' in order to better reflect that the 'Dataset' (which, strictly speaking, is not a 'database' as the previous version suggested) contains data only on the loss or renunciation of citizenship after a citizen of a respective state voluntarily acquires the citizenship of another state. Hence, the Dataset does not include data on dual citizenship regulations for 'incoming' naturalisation, such as a renunciation requirement for immigrants who wish to acquire the citizenship of a state (cf. Vink and Bauböck 2013, p.17).
