AGENDA 21

For the few, not the many

by DARREN SMITH

The renewal of the Coronavirus Act on Wednesday 30th September with barely a mention in the mainstream media and only a 90 minute debate by Parliament is a clear sign that the planned implementation of 'Agenda 21' is at full throttle, whether most of the population is aware of what is taking place or not.

Although a group of about 85 MP's had tabled an amendment to curtail what the CV Act enables the Government and its authorised officers to do to people, Speaker Hoyle did not include it for debate due to lack of time, despite its obvious popularity and the serious public concerns about the removal of human rights the Act continues to facilitate. Only 24 MP's voted against it and 292 were 'no vote recorded' including most Labour and all SNP Members.

The Act's most dangerous part, Schedule 21, effectively sweeps away the ancient law of 'an Englishman's home is his castle' and allows police or other officers to use 'reasonable force' to enter any building including your home, work or leisure location without a warrant, and remove you and your family to a centre where you can be tested and treated for Coronavirus and held for 14 days should they require it.

The CV Act could be used to separate those who listen to the science rather than the government under the guise of 'protecting public health,' or any group for any reason in the future. Not often, in recent decades, have government regimes given back the freedoms they have taken under the guise of 'terrorism' and serious crises and emergencies. These laws are rarely temporary.

We believe the only reason there is not mass resistance towards this human rights-stripping legislation laid down in the name of 'public safety,' is the omission of any mention at all of what laws are being passed in the 24/7 mainstream news in 2020, particularly the main evening broadcasts that most people get their 'news' from, whether first or second hand, and which are repeated throughout the day.

Removal of these individual rights and natural freedoms is at the core of what Agenda 21 is about, under the guise of 'saving the earth's resources.'

It promises a transformation from our known way of life to a 'communitarian' society, and is in fact the establishment of a two-tier system where most are restricted from using and enjoying natural resources in the name of preserving them 'for all' and saving the earth. Did you enjoy lockdown? Imagine that permanently in one city except for rare special privileges and without much sunny weather.

First publicly announced at the United Nations gathering in Rio in 1992, Agenda 21 will leave the vast majority of us imprisoned in 'smart cities' where we will be fully surveilled, automatically policed and taxed, and desperately fighting over the few and ever more expensive resources allotted to us. The digitisation of the natural world into what we now know as 'Big Data, AI, Blockchain and the Internet of Everything,' means that those who own and control the giant corporations and world government agencies will be able to fully inventorise, utilise and rule everything from every blade of grass to every human being on earth, should the people simply allow them to complete their agenda.

If left on the books unamended and waiting for a Secretary of Health to declare a public emergency, the Coronavirus Act 2020 states that anyone can be taken and imprisoned, under only the suspicion of being ill.

Given that we are already seeing dictatorial decrees from the cabinet (not through Parliament but through the media,) could an even more dictatorial regime come to power in the future (without anyone noticing at first) and perhaps use the CV Act to quarantine people together? To restrict them from certain activities and in certain numbers, or even remove them at any time they choose and dispose of the body using 'Covid-19' on your death certificate?

Perhaps it is because we have seen it happen on the screen so many times, it is hard to believe it is actually happening in real life - 1984, Brave New World, and a thousand 'Dr. Evils' who always get defeated at the last minute by the superhero whom the movie is named after. Only this time, it is those in the audience who have to be the heroes in this story.

It's 11.59, do read on.

UK: MAKING CRIME LEGAL

Under legislation going before Parliament, MI5, the police, the National Crime Agency and several other government agencies that use informants or undercover agents will be able to explicitly authorise them to commit a specific crime as part of an 'operation.'

The Covert Human Intelligent Sources Bill will merely require MI5 officers and others to show the crime is "necessary and proportionate" which is language designed to be so elastic you could twang it from here to Dan Andrews' brutal, human rights-trampling, authoritarian police state in Victoria, Australia and back before you could find a losing argument for 'reasonable and proportionate,' your Honour.

There will also be no role for the Crown Prosecution Service in reviewing the secret crimes, despite the Security Minister James Brokenshire saying there would be 'robust, independent oversight' - this will be from just one senior judge.

The bill, now past its Second Reading in the Commons, lists 3 very broad uses, leaving the intelligence agencies with a near-unlimited capacity to not only commit crimes themselves but also authorise others to commit genuine harm against individuals should the bill go ahead unamended:

School tells pupils anyone who disagrees with the Government and the BBC is 'far-right' and should be reported

by DARREN SMITH

A school in the West Midlands is reported to have put on a presentation which portrayed those who suspect the Government may not be fully truthful at all times as 'conspiracy theorists' and 'far-right terrorists' that should be reported if these views are heard by them.

In a stunning echo of East Germany, Soviet Russia and 1984, according to reports there was no obvious irony or allusion to this blatant brainwashing to conform to the rulers' line, infinitely echoed ad nauseum through the tightly-controlled broadcast channels.

During discussions in class, one teacher suggested all vaccines are perfectly safe, and the coming Covid vaccine, which is still in trials and has already severely damaged at least 2 victims, would be too. The report goes:

"Myself and two other parents (also on here) have been informed by our children that a presentation was held at their senior school today. Some of it was acted out by teachers in sketches.

The children were told not to listen to any 'fake news' about masks and not to believe anything unless it's on BBC or Sky News. Anything shared on social media is 'conspiracy theories' and should be ignored even if it's claimed it's from scientists!

They showed a video of people talking about things like masks don't work, they're just a mind control trick, and said that was the kind of people they were talking about. Apparently they said anyone who thinks like that are far-right, extremist and terrorists - and if you think like that you're a terrorist!" My daughter's own words to me were 'It was brainwashing Mom, total brainwashing!'

The school told the children that if they hear anyone talking like that - or hear 'things like that' talked about at home then they should report it to student support services or the National Counter Terrorism office!

They actually said to them that if anyone in your family has a minority view that the mainstream don't share then they are 'far-right'.

Oh and one of the teachers decided to take it one step further and tell her class that everyone should take the vaccines as they are 'perfectly safe!"

Nice to know she clearly has information about something that not even top scientists are aware of as it's not even been produced yet as far as I'm aware!

We are all fuming - if ever there was a case of brainwashing, indoctrination and far right ideology then this looks like it to me!"

Notice served to MP's of intended Private Prosecution against them

drafted by MICHAEL O'BERNICIA

On 30th September, a notice of intended Private Prosecution was sent to all serving MP's after a grand jury found there was sufficient evidence to successfully gain a likely conviction against the accused in a magistrates' court.

The action was brought by [redacted for security].

The charges read as follows:

Here lies the Notice of Intended Private Criminal Prosecution, which was served upon every serving MP by email this morning, for and on behalf of the British people:

Dear Sirs,

You are hereby served notice that it is my intention to lay information in a Private Criminal Prosecution against yourselves, alleging that the following crimes have been committed against the British people:

1. Section 2 of the Fraud Act 2006 has been repeatedly breached in the enactment of the Coronavirus Act 2020 [the CV Act] – an act which was founded upon a series of dishonest statements relied upon by every serving MP. Namely:

a. That there was a genuine public health emergency, which justified the draconian measures taken.

b. That there was a legal basis for such an act to be passed into law.

c. That there was no viable alternative course of action that could be taken to "flatten the curve" of alleged COVID-19 deaths.

2. In addition, the CV Act unlawfully purports to have suspended the democratic right of every Briton to remove the government from office, as well as the individual rights guaranteed by the Common Law, which are beyond the jurisdiction of the legislature.

3. The CV Act also purports to have legislated for the falsification of death certificates, which has enabled the government to grossly inflate the number of people who have reportedly died of the Covid-19 virus, which in any event has never actually been proven to exist.

4. Nevertheless, the ONS data shows that the government policy which was enabled by the CV Act doubled the average five year UK mortality rate, which is considered tantamount to genocide under international law, when the fatal refusal of care to patients in care homes and hospitals is taken into account.

5. Furthermore, the enactment of the CV Act also comprises a fundamental breach of the Treason Felony Act 1848, in that it treasonously purports to authorise ministers of the Crown to govern the People by royal decree or proclamation, which is strictly prohibited by articles 1 and 2 of the Bill of Rights 1689.

6. In any event, as Lord Coke, the draftsman of the Petition of Right, said in the 1610 decision of Thomas Bonham v College of Physicians 8 Co Rep 107a; 77 Eng Rep 638, commonly known as Dr. Bonham's Case, in the Court of Common Pleas:

"In many cases, the common law will control Acts of Parliament, and sometimes adjudge them to be utterly void: for when an Act of Parliament is against common right and reason, or repugnant, or impossible to be performed, the common law will control it and adjudge such an Act to be void."

Should you collectively move to set aside the act which the Common Law ajudges to be repugnant, as well as void ab initio, as per the Dr Bonham case, no later than the midnight on the 2/10/2020, this action will be suspended.

However, in the event you fail to do so, for any reason whatsoever, a QC and legal team will be engaged to lay the information before a court of competent jurisdiction at the earliest opportunity and the Private Criminal Prosecution will commence.

Please be advised that a Grand Jury of the People has already determined that there is sufficient evidence to indict every MP for fraud, treason and genocide. This is your last chance to leave your mark on the right side of history because there is no jury that would not convict every complicit member of Parliament on the charges that will be laid.

Nevertheless, I trust you will see the devastating error you have made, before it is too late.

Yours sincerely,

[Name Redacted]

For & on behalf of the British People – All Rights Reserved

Last Chance

This notice represents the last opportunity that every serving MP has to put right their wrongdoings against the People and was served upon them all this morning 30th September 2020, as they prepared for a Parliamentary debate about whether the unlawful and void Coronavirus Act 2020 should be applied for another six months.

In the event that enough MP's do not rise in opposition to block the government's attempt to perpetuate its own unaccountability until next spring, by midnight on 02/10/2020, a top QC will be engaged and the charges will be laid in a criminal court against every serving MP.

Let's hope that enough consciences are sufficiently agitated to make sure that the tyrannous act is struck out as void and unlawful, with those responsible for crimes against the People being prosecuted with the full force of the Common Law.

Because the most likely alternative is that the People will hold them all jointly and severally liable for every one of those crimes, in Common Law courts and genocide tribunals.

Darpa and Gates Foundation help develop nanochip for vaccines

by MUNKEE STEEMIT

The Department of Defense, and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, have partnered with a Silicon Valley company, Profusa, to implement a technology which could control our minds and bodies. What may seem like science fiction, is in fact happening in real-time.

A permanent chip made of an advanced material called hydrogel irreversibly ties humans to the internet 'cloud.' The chip, about 5mm long, provides feedback to a database on changes in body chemistry and other biometrics. The company says technology will be used to detect Covid and other diseases in the general population, before symptoms show.

The latest revised CDC overall survival rate for the Covid virus is 99.8%, versus 99.9% for the common 'flu. Nevertheless, nearly 150 days after governments proclaimed that 15 days of "lockdowns" and social distancing would be necessary to "flatten the curve" so that hospitals would not be overwhelmed, US governors still exert emergency powers based on the announcement of 'new cases.'

A defense industry website Defense One reports that the chip implant could win FDA approval by early 2021: "Profusa says the sensor is on track to try for FDA approval by early next year."

The industry magazine writes effusively: "Why are pandemics so hard to stop? Often it's because the disease moves faster than people can be tested for it. The Defense Department is helping to fund a new study to determine whether an under-the-skin biosensor can help trackers keep up — by detecting flu-like infections even before their symptoms begin to show."

The hydrogel chip biosensor is a soft, flexible fibre designed to be biologically compatible with the body's tissues for continuous monitoring, while overcoming the effects of local inflammation or rejection.

Along with the advent of in-body nanotechnology, and sensors which tie the human body to an artificial intelligence platform, the possibilities for misuse by totalitarian governments has not been lost on privacy and freedom watchdogs. With advanced biosensors, artificial intelligence may be able to read the subject's every mood and activity, heart rate, respiratory rate, body temperature, even sexual activity.

Technology critic Adam Keiper writes in The New Atlantis: "Nanotechnology could theoretically be used to make mind-control systems, invisible and mobile eavesdropping devices, or unimaginably horrific tools of torture."

DARPA, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency which is an arm of the Department of Defense, partnered with Profusa, an Emoryville, CA-based biotech company, to develop the technology in 2011.

A Profusa Press Release from March 2018 states: "today scientists are presenting results showing tiny biosensors that become one with the body...stream data to a mobile phone and to the cloud, and that are painlessly placed under the skin with a single injection."

BioOptics World, an industry magazine, describe Profusa sensors as "Injectable biosensors that become one with the body's tissue."

The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation grant is described as "Implantable multi-analyte sensors for the continuous monitoring of body chemistries."

Development of In-Body Nanotechnology Which Could Be Combined with Biochips

One of Profusa's principle investors, according to a company profile, is the US Army Research Office. At the same time in-body hydrogel technology is being developed, in-body nanoparticle technology is being developed as well.

The Department of Defense makes no attempt to hide its desire to use nanotechnology to develop "super-soldiers" who do not need to sleep, have heightened sense awareness, and other "battlefield" advantages, regardless of long-term side effects to health.

In the past, the health of soldiers has seemed an afterthought to a military establishment which has exposed its soldiers to Agent Orange, and experimental Gulf War vaccinations against biological agents.

A widely deployed mass surveillance platform would require enormously increased capacity in cellphone and wifi networks. Some say this is one reason governments are driving so hard to replace current networks with 5G.

Profusa is also working on research with Imperial College, another benefactor of Gates largesse in the area of vaccinations. Imperial College is the institution from which sprang the ill-fated study by Professor Neil Ferguson which predicted over half a million dead in the UK without social distancing.

Prof. Ferguson has been roundly discredited as wrong on all counts.

Zahara Sultana MP said "I can't support legislation that could give undercover state agents the licence to murder, torture and commit sexual violence. It would mean victims of scandals like Spy Cops would be denied justice in the future."

"There are a whole series of weaknesses in it, which at the end of the day will impinge on innocent people." said David Davis MP, while Andrew Mitchell, the former Tory Chief Whip, said: "Parliament should be incredibly cautious in granting such powers in a free society, and the executive must provide the strongest possible justification."

Doctor arrested for speaking after riot police break up peaceful assembly in Trafalgar Square

The Corona panic is a play. It's a scam. A swindle. It's high time we understood that we're in the midst of a global crime.' A Group of more than 500 doctors in Germany had said at a press conference only recently for the Corona Extra-Parliamentary Inquiry Committee.

Then on the 26th of September at Speaker's corner in Hyde Park, London, one of their spokespeople, the well-respected Doctor from Hamburg Dr. Heiko Schoning, was censored by being bundled into the back of a police van by dozens of riot police.

"We medical doctors can see we have no medical pandemic. It's a good message, that we do not see any killer virus, and it is the plain data that shows us" Dr. Schoning told Anna Brees not a few hours before being arrested for telling a crowd this at Speaker's Corner, Hyde Park, London.

by DARREN SMITH

You read that right – the British establishment ordered that a respected medical doctor who had been flown in from Germany be arrested, handcuffed, bundled into a van and kept locked up at Wandsworth police station for 22 hours. At Speaker's Corner.

A little time earlier, around 3pm, Riot police had also come steaming in with batons raised (and used) on a large assembly of around 40,000 in Trafalgar Square, who had been peacefully listening to speeches and music for three hours with not a single crime recorded nor Covid case reported.

While the Met stated organisers were asked to disperse the crowd as the reason given for the sudden violent assault, no such request was ever received as close contact between the organisers, police and Westminster council officials had been maintained throughout the event, with the police liaison being named and thanked, and a minute's silence duly observed by the crowd for the officer shot at Croydon on the 25th September.

This respect was not given both ways in the end, so once police had effectively ended the event by seizing the equipment in the middle of Dr. Heiko's speech, most of the crowd marched down Oxford Street to Hyde Park, surprising and delighting shoppers, and it was there another large crowd gathered to hear Dr. Heiko speak for a further 8 or 9 minutes, before the riot police were again instructed to mob-handedly arrest the peaceful Dr. Schoning.

He then spent the next 22 hours in custody at Wandsworth police station despite no law being broken. Coming out to a hero's welcome before finally getting to do his speech unhindered. It is likely his story and profile have now been seen by many more because of his arrest than if they had just left him alone.

It seems the regime are censoring the truth wherever they can, and in any way they can – they certainly didn't want the people to hear this doctor's opinion.

Dr. Schoning is only one of thousands of medical and other professionals speaking out against the Governments' constant fear stories and draconian responses (see opposite,) calling coronavirus no more deadly than the 'flu, and which can be treated using medicines that have been around for decades.

Not only are they refused airtime on the main broadcasters to actually debate the claims being made and conclusions being drawn, their viral videos end up being censored from YouTube and Facebook before they can really start reaching the masses.

All one has to do to determine the truth is ask whether a genuine pandemic would need to have its own censorship army, antisocial distancing laws, compass, calendar and watch? Then perhaps pay a little more attention to those doctors being censored because the likes of Johnson, Hancock, Whitty,

Sturgeon et al. do not want you to hear what they have to say. The other side of these actions by the regimes is unfortunately their negligence and the deaths they have likely caused by their actions.

Dr. Schoning had also said at the Inquiry Committee, concerning Germany: "According to an internal report from the Federal Ministry of the Interior, 90% of all necessary operations in Germany were not carried out, which affected 2.5 million people. This report also states that there are or will be 5,000 to 125,000 deaths resulting from these government measures. These are human beings, fellow citizens who have already died or are still dying. This report was dated May 7, 2020. This is also the reason why we are now taking this Corona investigation into our own hands because we can no longer wait.

It is more than grossly negligent that government agencies do not disclose these things and, as it seems, orchestrate them, because the scientific data already shows that there is no basis for these measures. We all ask ourselves – of course also in business, but this is mainly about human lives – who benefits? That's a question we will also try to find answers to. Cui bono? Who benefits?"

Just why does Scientist Piers Corbyn keep getting arrested?

Back in April during the first lockdown, Piers Corbyn was already issuing a rallying cry to those who had questions, and for resistance to the measures being enforced by the UK Government on the back of its overreaching 'Coronavirus Act 2020'. From a handful of concerned citizens to now over 40,000 attendees at monthly London rallies, Piers has been there since the beginning.

by VICTORIA AEYN

Never one to hold back, he has a lot to say: "The official effects of the thing they describe as the Covid-19 virus are currently less than a normal flu so there is no justification for these measures. The fact is the government and mega-corporations have a deeper intention which is against your interests. The effects of their measures are to crash the economy, make millions jobless, destroy small businesses, ruin sport and all social and cultural life. This will give more power, control and profit to the mega-corporations. The measures are also used as a cover to take away the right to organise and act in social groups.

This 'New Normal' is a major step to the New World Order which the World Economic Forum and huge corporations want to impose on us all. They gain from this and we all lose. To stop this, we have to fight back by any means necessary."

Fighting talk from a man who is unafraid to take on the establishment - facing a £10k fine simply for attending gatherings to bring information to the public - Piers plans to challenge the fixed penalty notice in court. "They want to silence me because I'm getting the truth to the public and getting people actively opposing this Covid con. My Twitter and other social media are also being censored."

A sinister vision of our potential future, where advances in technology mean the creation of a full surveillance state is only a few more clicks away, is part of the reason he feels we should all become informed on this social crisis.

"The protagonists of the 'Great Reset' are trying to impose something very similar to the Chinese Big Brother system. All aspects of the Covid measures are anti-human and reduce liberty. Health Passports and digital ID are horrific attacks on freedoms and are intended to control everybody. As individuals and collectively we must refuse and oppose all these measures".

The conversation flows into discussion of the types of technology creeping into our lives, from the Track & Trace app to the LG ThinkQ home of the future - a lot of which Piers describes as part of the so-called 4th Industrial revolution/technocracy, and as 'scary dehumanising stuff.'

Artificial intelligence and Big Data do have the growing capabilities to control the behaviour of us all, especially in the hands of governments who are known to be corrupt at best.

Piers believes "5G is key to all of this artificial intelligence diktat. The technocratic agriculture requires 5G over the whole country. To monitor and control farm machines, animals and humans. Farmers are generally unaware of what is in store for them," and it's not hard to be alarmed at the dystopian potential of these technologies.

Many of the public may be sleepwalking into a new world: "Health Passports and vaccinations are a tool of coercion. The likely consequence of the first vaccine will be people needing vaccines every year. All of this will make bonanza profits for big pharma.

The combined net asset value of Gates, Zuckerberg and Bezos has also increased by $150 billion dollars since March. This is $20 for every man, woman and child on earth.

These measures will be used to control us more and more if they get away with it. There will be increasing resistance and increasing disrespect for the existing 'democratic' process, and then attempts by the ruling circles to impose martial law on a permanent basis (as in George Orwell's book '1984'). But this could be defeated by actions which make the local state, such as the police, inoperable, and open the door to new forms of society."

Despite the risks and the fast pace in which changes to our civil liberties have occurred, Piers does not believe the battle is up yet "We must unite or lose - build #OurMovement united action groups in every town and village.

We must support all those victimised and sacked for resisting the virus con rules. We must defy contagion fear! Choose a pub to drink against curfew rules for instance and keep an eye out for independent media, protests and community based actions".

I asked Piers for his thoughts on the hastily developed vaccine, being touted by mainstream media as the way out of the cycle of lockdowns: "Modern vaccines are dangerous and measured death rates from people who have had vaccines are greater than people who have not had them. This is because they damage your immune system. All the Covid vaccine programmes should be halted now. They're dangerous and only big pharma benefits.

Sir Patrick Vallance, a chief advisor on Covid, has £600k in personal shares in vaccine maker GSK, a company he used to work for. This conflict of interest is unacceptable and shows the system is corrupt". Doctors such as Vernon Coleman have plenty of information online for readers to check out about these subjects.

It seems Piers has a lot of knowledge and conviction, which shows why he has become an unlikely poster child for standing up for human freedom here in the UK. He asked me to leave the readers with a clear three point message.

"Beware the policeman in your mind, we are all being slowly brainwashed into a dystopia.

We must seize every opportunity locally, nationally and across the world to push back their narrative. Success will be uneven. Local action groups, nationally co-ordinated as far as possible, are needed to have targeted actions and common demands.

We will have to build on successes on some places or countries. It could be, for example; some towns could operate as normal places and the Writ of government be excluded from them. Such areas would then become examples for others to follow."

Join Piers and many other thousands of people at upcoming events across the country, or keep informed by checking independent, local and online media.

CDC admits there is no Covid-19

The CDC document is titled, "CDC 2019-Novel Coronavirus (2019-nCoV) Real-Time RT-PCR Diagnostic Panel." It is dated July 13, 2020.

by JON RAPPOPORT

Buried deep in the document, on page 39, in a section titled, "Performance Characteristics," we have this: "Since no quantified virus isolates of the 2019-nCoV are currently available, assays [diagnostic tests] designed for detection of the 2019-nCoV RNA were tested with characterized stocks of in vitro transcribed full length RNA…"

The key phrase there is: "Since no quantified virus isolates of the 2019-nCoV are currently available…"

Every object that exists can be quantified, which is to say, measured. The use of the term "quantified" in that phrase means: the CDC has no measurable amount of the virus, because it is unavailable. The CDC has no virus.

A further tip-off is the use of the word 'isolates." This means no isolated virus is available.

Another way to put it: No one has an isolated specimen of the Covid-19 virus.

No one has isolated the Covid-19 virus. Therefore, no one has proved that it exists.

As if this were not enough of a revelation to shock the world, the CDC goes on to say they are presenting a diagnostic PCR test to detect the virus-that-hasn't-been-isolated… and the test is looking for RNA which is PRESUMED to come from the virus that hasn't been proved to exist.

And using this test, the CDC and every other public health agency in the world are counting Covid cases and deaths… and governments have instituted lockdowns and economic devastation using those case and death numbers as justification.

If people believe "you have the virus but it is not available," and you have the virus except it is buried within other material and hasn't been extracted and purified and isolated, these people believe the moon is made of green cheese.

This is like saying. "We have the 20 trillion dollars, they are contained somewhere in our myriad accounts, we just don't know where." If you don't know where, you don't know you have the money. 'The Covid-19 virus is somewhere in the material we have—we just haven't removed it from that material.' Science is not assumptions.

Maryland man jailed for one year following multiple parties during virus lockdown

A Maryland man who held multiple large gatherings during lockdowns in violation of Governor Larry Hogan's public health order, banning groups over ten or more people, was sentenced to one year in jail, reported WJZ Baltimore.

Judge W. Louis Hennessy sentenced Shawn Marshall Myers, 42, of Hughesville, to one year in jail on Friday (Sept. 25) for failure to comply with an emergency order.

Myers threw multiple parties on his property; in some cases, more than 50 attendees were counted by the local law enforcement agency in late March, which was around the time the virus pandemic erupted.

According to the Charles County Sheriff, the first party was held on March 22, and had between 50 to 60 people present. "Myers was argumentative with officers but eventually agreed to disband his party," according to the State's Attorney.

Five days later, on Mar. 27, officers responded to Myers' home for a second time, finding more than 50 people partying. At that point, he was arrested. "Officers told Myers to disband the party, but again he was argumentative claiming he and his guests had the right to congregate," the State's Attorney said. "Beyond being argumentative, Myers directed his guests to stay, in defiance of Governor Hogan's orders and the officers' orders to disband the party."

In addition to a jail sentence, Myers was handed a $5,000 fine and ordered to serve up to three years of unsupervised probation upon his release. Readers may recall Myers wasn't the only one hosting parties during lockdowns. Millennials threw wild parties as a game to infect each other so they can "get it over with" and get the antibodies, much like we used to do with the chicken pox.

New road between Russia and China

by MAXIM BLINOV, Moscow (Sputnik News)

The highway bridge linking Russia and China over the Amur River is expected to be operational as soon as November, according to Amur Oblast Governor Vasily Orlov. The bridge is set to boost economic ties between the two nations by increasing volume eight-fold.

"The infrastructure and all the services are ready. We expect that the bridge will be opened in November," said Governor Vasily Orlov.

The ambitious $300 million construction project began in Dec 2016 and was completed in Nov 2019.

The bridge links the cities of Heihe in northern China and Blagoveshchensk in Russia's Far East that are located on opposite banks of the Amur River.

The structure is more than 0.6 miles long and is a part of a key 12.4 mile two-lane highway project between Russia's oil and gas fields and communist China. It will only take cargo for the first 1.5 years of its operation, before opening up to passenger traffic.

Israel limits protests in new coronavirus lockdown law

by JEFFREY HELLER, Jerusalem (Reuters)

Israel's parliament approved a government-backed edict on Wednesday likely to stifle protests against Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu over alleged corruption and his handling of the coronavirus crisis.

The legislation, ratified after an all-night debate in the Knesset, bans Israelis from holding demonstrations more than 1 km (0.6 miles) from their homes, a measure the government said was aimed at curbing Covid-19 infections.

Critics of the new measure, which becomes part of Israel's second national lockdown that went into effect on Sept. 18, said it was really intended to block protests near Netanyahu's official residence in Jerusalem.

"What's the next step? Banning the opposition leader from addressing parliament?" Yair Lapid, who heads the opposition in the legislature, tweeted about the vote.

For weeks, thousands of demonstrators have gathered to call for Netanyahu's resignation.

Opinion polls show only about a quarter of the public has confidence in the way he has dealt with the pandemic, which had largely subsided during a March-May lockdown.

Sanctions imposed on Belarus after President refuses IMF

The British and Canadian governments imposed sanctions, on Tuesday, against long-time Belarusian president Alexander Lukashenko, along with his eldest son Viktor, and six other high-ranking officials in the state apparatus.

The sanctions mean that those on the list are banned from travelling to the UK and Canada, and any assets they hold in those countries will be immediately frozen. Lukashenko is the first world leader to be targeted by the new UK Global Human Rights sanctions regime.

"Alexander Lukashenko's regime is responsible for a string of human rights violations against opposition figures, media, and the people of Belarus in the wake of rigged elections," the British government's statement said. "Despite numerous calls from the international community, he has refused to engage in dialogue with the opposition, choosing instead to double down on his violent repression."

The statement quoted British Foreign Secretary Dominic Raab, who unironically explained that the sanctions were imposed "in response to the torture and mistreatment of hundreds of peaceful protestors."

In the Canadian government's statement, Minister of Foreign Affairs François-Philippe Champagne said his nation was standing "in solidarity with the people of Belarus as they struggle to restore human rights and achieve democracy in their country."

There are six further sanctioned officials outside of the Lukashenko family, and the history of sanctions from the Western powers is always incremental, beginning with the leadership and eventually spreading to the population in general - Iran & Syria are two recent examples of crippling sanctions imposed on governments that do not comply.

Lukashenko was elected for a sixth term as the Belarusian president on August 9th, in a contest many consider to have been rigged. According to the official results, he received 80% of the vote, with opposition candidate Svetlana Tikhanovskaya only receiving 10%.

In the same week the British Government sent in riot police to break up a mass peaceful political meeting for the second time running, it seems no irony is lost on the UK and other Western regimes in admonishing other countries for cracking down and trying to de-legitimise peaceful opposition, when we have seen it from them time and again.

Not only the attack on human rights in Trafalgar Square on the 19th and 26th of September, but the harsh and inhumane treatment of journalist Julian Assange who helped expose U.S. war crimes during the illegal Iraq war and is now being held in Belmarsh Prison pending a final decision on his extradition on Jan 4th 2021.

China's economy recovering well, figures show

China's official manufacturing Purchasing Manager's Index (PMI) for September has come in at 51.5, as compared to 51.0 in August, according to its National Bureau of Statistics (NBS). A figure above 50 indicates expansion.

The reading was above analysts' expectations; polling by Reuters projected the index to come in at 51.2.

The positive performance of the key sector was driven by strong export and import orders. Indicators showed the expansion of these for the first time this year, at 50.8 and 50.4 respectively, in September – 1.7 and 1.4 points up from August. The official services PMI was also up, at 55.9 for September from 55.2 in August.

According to Zhao Qinghe, a senior statistician at the National Bureau of Statistics, the strong September data was also due to the simultaneous recovery of both supply and demand.

Economists suggest the week-long Golden Week holidays, from Thursday through to October 8, may be helping, as factories quickened production before the break.

The long holiday also spurred consumer demand, Zhao said, according to CNBC. In particular, production of and new orders for food, alcohol, beverage and tea expanded at a faster pace in September compared to August, he pointed out.

China's manufacturing sector took a hit earlier this year, as factories shut due to large-scale lockdowns to allegedly contain 'Covid-19.'

Russian Arctic shipping route up by 32%

The volume of cargo transported via Russia's Northern Sea Route is constantly growing and could top expectations by the end of the year, said Director General of the State Atomic Energy Corporation Rosatom Alexey Likhachev.

Rosatom is an infrastructure operator for the route.

"The plan for this year's freight traffic along the Northern Sea Route was 29 million tons, but today our forecast is that it will exceed 32 million tons," Likhachev told Rossiya 24 TV channel. Earlier, he said that by 2024 the volume of freight transportation via the NSR could reach 92.6 million tons.

The NSR, which stretches the entire length of Russia's Arctic and Far East regions, is expected to become a major trade route for goods shipped between Europe and Asia.

According to President Vladimir Putin, the route is "the key to the development of the Russian Arctic regions of the Far East," and the goal is to make it a "truly global, competitive transport artery."

Autistic Australian boy, found dead after search called off due to Covid restrictions

William's older brother Harrison, told Seven News he and other brother Jake were turned away after spending Tuesday night scanning the area on dirt bikes.

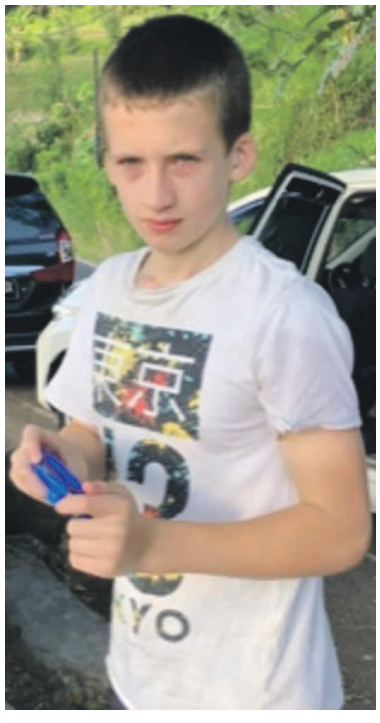
"We've been told by all the police, saying we're not allowed to help because we're past the five kilometre radius, which is going to put a bit more of a delay in finding him," his older brother, Harrison said. A ranger was also turned away due to Covid restrictions.

William lived with high functioning autism and it was feared he may have become disorientated without food due to the length of time he had been missing.

Frustrated locals who know the terrain said they were stopped from joining the search because of a ban on going more than three miles from home.



14 year-old William's older brothers spent Tuesday night searching alongside rescuers but were stopped from doing the same the next morning.

A group of 50 more volunteers met at Warburton police station only to be ordered home.

A reporter at the scene as police delivered news to scores of frustrated volunteers described the mood as "tense".

"This is not to do with Covid. We don't want to bring this into a Covid conversation. What we are doing is focusing our search on Will," said Inspector Jason Goddard, local area commander for the Yarra Ranges police service.

Citing fake virus threat, Victoria Police turn away volunteers

Posted on 4:50 pm, September 23, 2020 by currencylad

And those volunteers happen to be the experts on the local terrain. This is institutionalised cowardice:

'There's a kid out there': Locals puzzled as police bar them from hunt

> In line with coronavirus restrictions, at this stage we do not require any assistance from the public. We're living in different times at the moment… we have to be very conscious of COVID."

'Bullst': Controversial decision angers volunteers in search for missing boy

Let's hope 14 year-old autistic lad, William Wall, is found safe and well – despite this shameful negligence.

UPDATE: Victoria Police just confirmed that William's body has been found in Yarra Junction. They didn't require any assistance, remember. They had the situation under control. Obviously.

Banks caught laundering over $2 Trillion for criminals

Major international banks have been accused of laundering huge sums of money for many years, in spite of warnings about the sources of the cash, according to investigative journalists, who have cited confidential documents submitted to the US Treasury's specialist Financial Enforcement Network (FINCEN.)

The latest expose by the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists (ICIJ) and media partners around the world is based on leaked Suspicious Activity Reports (SARs) that banks and financial firms file with FINCEN.

The files allege that five banks — JPMorgan, HSBC, Standard Chartered Bank, Deutsche Bank and Bank of New York Mellon — "kept profiting from powerful and dangerous players even after US authorities fined these financial institutions for earlier failures to stem flows of dirty money".

They moved large sums of allegedly illicit funds over a period of nearly two decades despite red flags about the origins of the money. More than 2,100 Suspicious Activity Reports were obtained by BuzzFeed News and shared with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists (ICIJ) and other media organisations.

In all, the ICIJ reported that the files contained information about more than $2 trillion worth of transactions between 1999 and 2017, which were flagged by internal compliance departments of financial institutions as suspicious.

The SARs in themselves are not necessarily proof of wrongdoing, and the ICIJ noted that the leaked documents were a tiny fraction of the reports filed with FINCEN. They provide key intelligence in global efforts to stop money laundering and other crimes.

Banking system 'under-resourced and overwhelmed'

Media reports on Sunday painted a picture of a system that is both under-resourced and overwhelmed, allowing vast amounts of illicit funds to move through the banking system.

A bank has a maximum of 60 days to file SARs after the date of initial detection of a reportable transaction, according to the Treasury Department's Office of the Comptroller of the Currency. But the ICIJ report said in some cases the banks failed to report suspect transactions until years after they processed them.

The SARs also showed that banks often moved funds for companies registered in offshore havens, such as the British Virgin Islands, and did not know the ultimate owner of the account, the report said. Staff at major banks often used online searches to learn who was behind large transactions, it said.

Among the types of transactions highlighted by the report: funds processed by JPMorgan for potentially corrupt individuals and companies in Venezuela, Ukraine and Malaysia; money from a Ponzi scheme moving through HSBC and money linked to a Ukrainian billionaire processed by Deutsche Bank.

"I hope these findings spur urgent action from policymakers to enact needed reforms," said Tim Adams, chief executive of the trade group Institute of International Finance, in a statement. "As noted in today's reports, the impacts of financial crime are felt beyond just the financial sector – it poses grave threats to society as a whole."

"By utterly failing to prevent large-scale corrupt transactions, financial institutions have abandoned their roles as front-line defenses against money laundering," Paul Pelletier, a former senior U.S. Justice Department official and financial crimes prosecutor, told ICIJ. He said banks know that "they operate in a system that is largely toothless."

In response, HSBC and Deutsche Bank made diversionary statements to say the crimes were historical, with the other 3 paying lip service to 'following the law' and spending many millions in teams dedicated to 'fulfulling our obligations.'

All five have been repeatedly found to have violated their official promises of good behavior, the secret records show.

Bank gold traders convicted in trial

Former Deutsche Bank AG traders Cedric Chanu and James Vorley were convicted for manipulating gold and silver prices on Friday after three days of deliberation by a Federal jury in Chicago.

The two were accused of making fake trade orders between 2008 and 2013 to influence the prices of precious metals. Their trial was a week long and was the first of its kind since 2010, according to Bloomberg.

The convictions come as the result of a crackdown on "spoofing", placing orders with no intention of executing them, in order to move the price of the underlying product. Spoofing works by fooling the market into thinking there are more bids or offers than are legitimately there. It has been illegal since 2010's Dodd-Frank act.

Chanu and Vorley were said to have "weaponised" this tactic to mislead other traders, according to prosecutor Brian Young. The traders knew what they were doing, the prosecution argued, with Vorley even writing in a message to Chanu at one point: "This spoofing is annoying me. It's illegal for a start."

A co-worker at Deutsche Bank acted as witness during the trial and told the jury that Chanu and Vorley taught him how to manipulate prices by spoofing.

The defendants didn't call any witnesses but instead raised the issue of how difficult it was to try and prove criminal intent for "spoofing" in competitive global markets.

"If you fake a pass and run the ball, that's competition, not fraud," Vorley's lawyer said.

Chanu was convicted on seven counts of fraud and Vorley was convicted of three counts. They were found not guilty on charges of conspiracy. The government has said they are going to seek about four or five years of jail for each person. Vorley said he will appeal and that he was trading "well within the law".

CRIMINAL COMPLAINT AGAINST (MR) ANDREW HAIGH (CEO) OF NEWCASTLE BUILDING SOCIETY

There is an overriding public interest pertaining to this complaint in regard to the crime of fraud entering into the judicial system and onto the public records.

I can provide unequivocal proof of bank officials and licensed solicitors exercising forged mortgage deeds onto the HM Land Registry to obtain void court orders, thereby perverting the course of justice by fabricating evidence with intent to influence the outcome of judicial proceedings (civil) to enable the unauthorised seizure of land and property.

I can also provide damning evidence against officials of HMLR, the judiciary, the police and the County Courts who have overtly acted independently of their prerogative power, without jurisdiction 'ultra vires' to aid and abet in the said illegal transactions.

I believe my evidence is akin to the grave concern recently raised by Anthony Stansfeld PCC, regarding fraud and corruption by banks against the UK public: "This is serious organised crime by banks against the UK public."

Killing two birds with one stone: Covid-19 and Agenda 21

by JULIANNE M. ROMANELLO

Metropolitan Planning Organisations, Councils of Governments, Ministries of Commerce, and other quasi-governmental groups are quietly implementing Agenda 21 in every country, city, and town on earth.

Agenda 21's "bottom-up" reforms purport to save the planet and protect biodiversity by reducing greenhouse gases and regulating land use to create a healthier, more equitable, and more inclusive global economy.

Common Agenda 21 reforms include: "place-based" urban planning to reduce commuter traffic and promote mixed-use urban zones; high-density SMART urban housing (or "Stack and Pack") policies to reclaim outlying lands for ecological purposes; "community engagement" and "collaborative planning" strategies to encourage public-private partnerships, or P3s, that may circumvent sluggish legal frameworks in favour of swift regulatory governance; the privatisation of social services such as housing, education, policing, and public health to encourage "data-driven" and "outcomes-based" policies; the transformation of educational systems to promote standards-aligned, competency - or skills-based training for specific regional workforce needs (Bill Gates' Common Core Standards); "collective impact" strategies that convene "stakeholders" to accelerate transformative change through common measures of success, data-sharing agreements, community leadership and mentoring programs; and the establishment of special "economic development" or "innovation" zones that often receive tax incentives for investments in "distressed communities."

Agenda 21 aspires to measure and manage every aspect of resource use and consumption, and now, in 2020, they have the technological capacity to support this. But the technology that makes possible a comprehensive inventory of all the Earth's resources also renders much of the human workforce obsolete.

Automation and SMART technologies, biometric and genetic innovation, nanotechnology, AI and machine learning, and blockchain distributed ledger technology are pillars of what the founder of the World Economic Forum (WEF) Klaus Schwab names "the Fourth Industrial Revolution" or 4IR. The 4IR will disrupt legacy systems of government, public services, industry, and recreation, and it will decimate entire sectors of the economy, leaving an estimated one-third of the world's workforce unemployed and unemployable.

In terms of a balanced-load model, unemployment isn't sustainable: consumption continues without replenishment of the community stores through value-adding work (the legendary "useless eaters" remark by Kissinger.).

But the visionary leaders of the UN and the WEF partnered to address the future of SDGs (Sustainable Development Goals) and the plan for the people who would find themselves unemployed—and unemployable—was to be "re-skilled" or "up-skilled" over the course of a lifetime in order to contribute an "equitable" share to the global economy.

Enter the era of "digital transformation" and the "knowledge worker." In this new economic model, data—human behavioural data, to be precise—is the "new oil." That is, it is the fuel that powers the movements of industry and capital in the digital age. Human beings themselves are the suppliers, and web-based interactions and the Internet of Everything are the harvesters of this most valuable resource. With little consumption of real, physical resources, the new class of knowledge workers can generate value for the global community by providing behavioural data to the corporations and investors that, by partnering with non-profit organizations including the UN and the WEF, have tasked themselves with stewardship of the Earth's 'common future.'

But to what use is this data put? And how precisely does it contribute to the Agenda 21 SDGs? The answer lies in the emergence of the social impact economy and the Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) investing strategy.

The UN and WEF have introduced a new social and economic model—"the Great Reset"—that's marketed in the equitable, inclusive, and sustainable language of Agenda 21, and determines economic value not only in monetary terms, but also in terms of ESG impacts on the global community, as measured against the Agenda 21 SDGs.

To coincide with the new structure of value, public and private social change programs have adopted performance-based structures that measure "impact" or the quantifiable change attributable to the program. These programs harvest massive amounts of environmental and human behavioural data, which is fed into predictive analytics and forecasting models in order to identify the most effective means to guide human choices to align with the SDGs—a new impact program.

The development of impact programs is big business, and the more data collected through web-based signals and constant biometric surveillance, the more successful the business.

The UK's Behavioural Insights Team is a titan in the business of social impact, and contracts with governments across the world to develop and administer behavior-change interventions. It is those government contracts that become securities for institutional investors. Because, in theory, the potential for "positive change" in human behaviour is unlimited, the market for these types of impact programs is extremely lucrative.

When economic growth is a function of shaping and re-shaping human behaviour, there's no natural limit to the upside potential. The suppliers of the data are also the products of the data.

Agenda 21 works by managing resource consumption through surveillance and managing human choices through impact nudges; it creates a mechanism for unlimited corporate economic growth by making human behavioural impacts the foundational commodity of the 21st century.

By chance or by design, the Covid-19 pandemic has provided an "historic opportunity" to realize the aspirations of Agenda 21. The security and public health innovations rolled out in response to Covid-19—biometric tracking, contact tracing apps, remote education and employment, closure of offices and reclamation of land, monitoring of public utilities, and the like—conveniently coincide with the impact-driven Agenda 21 vision of an urbanised, digitised, and optimised 'sustainable future.'

HRH the Prince of Wales, a long-time advocate for Agenda 21, offered the following remarks at the launch of the Great Reset: "There is a golden opportunity to seize something good from this crisis... global crises know no borders, and highlight how interdependent we are as one people sharing one planet." He also issued a warning, adding that, "Unless we take the action necessary, and build in a greener and more inclusive and sustainable way, then we will have more and more pandemics." This prediction reminds us that Agenda 21 is now, and has always been, about control.

The Internet of Everything, and how the next generation of robots and drones will police Smart Cities

Several Robot manufacturers and their customers have been showing off their incredible advancements in cyber technology to allow these machines to take over several public services, most notably policing for the new 21st century 'smart cities'

Videos from Boston Dynamics' 'Atlas' and 'Spot' show incredible agility including forward rolls, high leaps and perfect landings with balance adjustment. No more criminals getting away because of too many donuts – Sergeant 'Atlas' is always available 24/7 and will be able to go everywhere thanks to Big Data, The Internet of Everything, AI, 5G and these incredible advances in robotics. We would also always do well to remember, these are just the ones they're showing us.

Another video from Singapore shows robot dogs patrolling a park, in an eerie reality echo of Black Mirror's 'Metalhead' episode, presumably able to instantly adapt to whatever latest edict has come down from the rulers in the previous five minutes as regards to socialised group size allowance and muzzle compliance. The dog announces instructions in a gentle android female voice every few minutes like they do in supermarkets today, and with the ability to count how many of us are gathered together to enforce the latest rules.

Those who thought that stairs would stop the machines taking over will also be disappointed - 'Spot' can climb and descend stairs and also open door handles. In this way it acts and looks more like a monkey in action.

Boston Dynamics has been selling its Spot robot dog/monkey to select research facilities for around a year now, but the company has announced that businesses in the United States are able to purchase it directly from their website.

At $74,500, Spot's modular platform is designed to be easily-configurable using a number of accessories and add-ons available.

This may also help explain or begin to offer reasons for what seems like funded antagonism in cities, towards strife, civil war, and calls for disbanding public police forces currently taking place in many places across the world today. The Hegelian dialectic in action, and once again it will only benefit those who have set it up, not the protagonists nor the vast rest of us. Do people really think the police won't be replaced with worse, and even more unaccountable?

Trevor Mack writes: In early March, when Italy was in full lockdown, footage of flying drones patrolling the streets went viral. Accompanying loudspeakers from the police vans below ordered, "Citizens, the current state of emergency requires us not to move from home unless absolutely necessary. Do not cross the city and stay in your home. Give up what is not of primary necessity and make this sacrifice."

In South Korea, Taiwan, and Israel, authorities use smartphone location data to enforce individual quarantines. Moscow police say they've already busted 200 quarantine violators caught via facial recognition-enabled cameras.

NSA contractor and perennial privacy offender Palantir is helping Britain's National Health Service track infections. Apps that leverage a smartphone's bounty of built-in, highly accurate sensors to enforce social distancing or map the movements of the infected have been deployed in Singapore, Poland, and Kenya; MIT researchers are now pitching a similar, but more "privacy friendly," app. In Mexico, Uber sent government authorities rider data to trace the route of an infected tourist, also banning 240 users who'd taken rides with the same driver.

To curtail the virus, countries around the world have now implemented unfettered, mass surveillance programs otherwise known as "contact tracing". Contact tracing is the Orwellian phrase for the 24/7 monitoring and data-crunching of every aspect of our lives; our actions, people we converse with, places we shop, who we walked past on the street, can now be replayed by the government and even volunteers using metadata. Never before have we seen the implementation of so many overt surveillance programs around the world.

China, the epitome of technocratic totalitarian rule in the world, placed the most extreme measures on its own people in order to stop the spread of the virus. Home to the Black Mirror-like 'Social Credit System', facial recognition cameras that catch you jaywalking, kidnapping and jailing by police if you criticize the government and police, many citizens of large cities in China have been softly conditioned to accept digital dystopian levels of societal control.

It is hard to imagine many people but those who rule would actually want to live in the world it seems we are heading for. The future they have planned is not one which leads to more freedom and choice for the average individual - but nothing planned by them for us ever is.

Selling people on the dream of a clean, green technologically superior way of doing things rather than leaving nature and humanity to do what we do best, through freedom, fair competition, and collaboration.

Why are third world countries doing so much better with the Coronavirus than developed nations?

by ANDREW MATHER

We are living a situation with government policies imposed by diktat justified by government reports of the virus. There is no independent narrative being included by the mainstream media. We are, simply put, not living a pandemic, but a reported pandemic and that one word makes all the difference.

If man-eating tigers or plague-ridden neighbours were roaming the streets, we'd be in our homes even if the government ordered us out of them.

We are in our homes or wearing masks because the government ordered it and I guarantee that not one of you has ever had a personal experience of the virus where you could say: "yes, your honour, I saw him with my own eyes, clear as I'm seeing you." You do not have that capacity. You are relying on reports. Government reports.

Now, far be it from me to question the government. They are our Elders, wise beyond measure, pure in heart and soul, impervious to the appeal of the titans of commerce and an elite who could spend more on champagne in a month than you could earn in a lifetime, and they wouldn't notice.

There is no reason to mistrust the government.

So, taking it out of Covid for a second, if the government reported that an alien invasion was levelling villages and killing people in their thousands, it is just a simple and terrifying truth.

Anyone posting videos of those villages, untouched, going about their life, is 'a conspiracy theorist.'

But if it should happen that the government posted their Weekly Stats of Deaths and Causes and listed Deaths By Disintegrator Ray: NIL, now there's a problem.

The government says people are dying by disintegrator ray in their thousands. The government says that no one has died by disintegrator ray. One way or another, the government is lying.

That is why my work these past six months has been almost entirely focused on government data. If the data shows that the government has been telling porkies, well… it's Government vs Government. One way or another, the government is lying.

Our elders lying? I know it's a shock. But it's their data. Difficult to get around that.

From six months' work I can share two fundamental principles that I think people can relate to fairly easily.

If you have Measles in Australia, and Measles in the USA or in Britain, I think it's fair to say that you'd expect the same sort of results. It's the same virus or disease. Some minor variation, in timing perhaps, or based on Europe being more densely packed. But broadly, it should be the same sort of experience.

Africa, poor and disease-ridden, would likely be having a harder time of it. Fortunately, with all our wealth and resources, we should, as Cuomo boaste, be the best prepared to deal with any health crisis.

So… if I was to list the impact of Covid-19 worldwide, we should expect a broadly similar experience, with maybe Africa suffering disproportionately, but we can always send them aid and support, if that's the case.

So… take a moment to consider which countries you believe would be the hardest hit, based on their unpreparedness, their lack of funds, their poor history of disease.

We're going to use a ranking from 24th June, at the height of the drama. There's been a slight change lately, a rather bizarre and distracting one, so let's make this rather easy to grasp, and we can cover the shift perhaps in later articles.

Drum roll… handkerchiefs at the ready for Africa, devastated by Covid-19… and… Obviously I've given you the wrong list. Those are the countries that handled it best. No, that's a very real listing of the worst hit nations (including a couple of US cities to reinforce the point).

Now, question for Political Science majors: what would you say were the three most significant centres of Western political and economic power? How about USA/New York, Belgium/EU HQ, and the UK? USA + UK = War of Terror.

These are the power centres… the wealthiest, most powerful, most advanced centres of WESTERN society, and they aren't just a little bit worse hit. By comparison to the Far East (South East Asia and Western Pacific) and South East Asia on its own, New York City has been hit 485 times worse, 582 times worse.

"It's a city." So is Singapore.

The EU, Belgium, 153 and 184 times worse respectively. The UK, 115 and 138 times worse, respectively. And each of those – NYC, Belgium, UK – implemented stringent lockdowns.

"It would be worse without lockdown!"

HOW? We've already taken the prize for the most absurd and extreme results in the entire world. 15,000 people lost their lives in the UK not thanks to Covid-19, but due to lockdown.

It's simple maths.

Those times ‘science’ got it wrong

Modern man likes to extol the virtues of science and wax lyrical about how the marvels of modern medicine enrich and prolong the lives of many people who would otherwise be doomed. With hindsight, however, we learn valuable lessons.

by LOUIZE SMALL

One of he biggest ever man-made medical tragedies was Thalidomide, also known as Distaval in the UK. The ‘wonder drug’ was aggressively marketed in the mid-late 1950s as a sedative medication for anxiety, insomnia and morning sickness yet it had not been tested on humans and any potential side effects were unknown.

Heinrich Mückter, the scientist credited with its invention, was a Nazi war criminal who conducted medical experiments at the Buchenwald concentration camp in Poland and caused the deaths of countless people Mückter fled to Germany and evaded prosecution for his crimes, becoming the Head of Research at Chemie Grünenthal, the company that licenced the use of the drug.

By 1958 a number of birth defects were reported in West Germany but the cause was unknown and erroneously attributed to nuclear testing. The side effects of Thalidomide were proven in 1959 and again acknowledged in 1962 but the pharmaceutical giant continued to market the medicine well into the 1970s. The drug caused irreparable harm to 24,000 infants throughout the world and many more babies were miscarried or euthanised on delivery.

In 1968, Chemie Grünenthal executives were tried for Involuntary Manslaughter but proceedings were halted due to the ‘minor guilt’ of the defendants and lack of public interest in the trial. Mückter was never held to account for the death and devastation he caused and died in 1987.

Mercury, a known neurotoxin and endocrine disruptor, was first used in dental fillings in the 19th century. Despite the American Society of Dental Surgeons’ requiring its members to not use amalgam fillings, they continued to be used throughout the world and have only recently been banned in 28 countries for use in children and pregnant women.

There are hundreds of studies that show mercury is hazardous to human health. Elemental mercury can accumulate in brain tissue and leech into food and saliva. Fillings expand and contract with exposure to different temperatures, causing cracks and fractures in teeth. Over time, the amalgam corrodes and vapour is released. Symptoms of mercury poisoning include: sweating, tremors, faster than normal heartbeat, addiction, memory loss, depression, cancer, thyroid disorders, Parkinson’s and dementia.

Dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane (more commonly known as DDT) is another chemical that has caused issues throughout the world. It was first synthesised in 1874 but its potency as an insecticide was not discovered until 1939. Before DDT, countless millions of people died worldwide due to illnesses such as malaria, typhus, yellow fever and bubonic plague.

While DDT has helped in the fight against malaria, and remains in use, it is hard to avoid the negative impact it has had on wildlife, due to the destruction of habitats and food sources. The widespread use of the chemical agent saw a decline in bird populations as their eggshells became so fragile that many of them shattered before hatching.

In 2004, 170 countries signed the Stockholm Convention on Persistent Organic Pollutants, restricting the use of DDT to emergencies (such as a malaria outbreak). It was hailed as a wonder chemical but its toxicity is well known. DDT, which is sprayed heavily on crops and present in the food we eat, breaks down to DDE in the human body and accumulates over time because it is water insoluble and therefore stored in fatty tissue.

Exposure to the chemical can cause nervous system damage, congenital disabilities, male infertility, miscarriage and developmental delay. Girls exposed to DDT before puberty are five times more likely to develop breast cancer in middle age.

Toiletry company Johnson & Johnson has recently paid out $4.69 billion after 12,000 women sued them for damages following diagnoses of ovarian cancer. The plaintiffs alleged that J&J’s talcum powder products were contaminated with asbestos and that the company had known about it and kept it quiet.

Paediatricians have warned the public against the use of baby powder for decades because of the risk of aspiration and choking. Cases of infant death caused by inhalation of talc date back to the 1960s. A 2016 Epidemiology study shows genital talc application increases ovarian cancer risk by 33%. Another study found that talcum powder usage was common for 63% of women with ovarian cancer.

Glyphosate is a chemical herbicide used to control weeds, which is sold as ‘Round Up.’ It is used in parks, playgrounds and cities and is easily available to buy, despite being a known carcinogen. It is genotoxic and an endocrine disruptor; exposure to it can lead to chronic health and developmental problems. Seeds are genetically modified in order to be resistant to glyphosate as the chemical is sprayed heavily on crops. It is harmful to the environment in myriad ways: it destroys wildflowers and insect habitats and because it is water-soluble it has considerable negative effects on aquatic life; its use binds micronutrients to the soil and causes deficiencies in plants.

The Monsanto Company has been ordered to pay $10 billion to plaintiffs in a class action law suit. The claimants allege that they developed Non-Hodgkins Lymphoma following exposure to the glyphosate-based Round Up. Lawyers claim the company knowingly covered up the health risks of the weed killer by collaborating with insiders from the Environmental Protection Agency to deny any cancer-causing effects. It was also discovered that Monsanto funded front groups to discredit scientists coming forward to report the harm caused by the product.

Bayer bought out Monsanto in 2018 and is now threatening bankruptcy if the plaintiffs do not agree to their terms. Appeals are still pending and many claimants have had their settlements reduced. Many of those involved in the class action suit have received no pay out at all, as of this writing.

> “Many of those involved in the class action suit have received no pay out at all, while the lawyers are laughing all the way to the bank.”

FEAR

- For under 75's, Sars-Cov 2 has a 99.98% recovery rate, similar to 'flu. We never take drastic measures for the 'flu. There is no new killer virus out there that could kill anyone at any time.
- Fines - because the government have been using faulty data, and because science has proved there is no health emergency, none of these are enforceable in a court of law. Every single one taken that far has been dropped. They are acting unlawfully, therefore the law is a perfectly fine recourse.
- 'One has a moral responsibility to disobey unjust laws' - Martin Luther King.
- Everything the Nazis did was 'legal.'

LIES

- The PCR covid test produces a >93% false positive rate, according to the government themselves.
- 'Cases' are not infections, and infections are about as 'fatal' as the 'flu normally is.
- The government announced on Oct 8th they will now combine 'flu and covid cases in their reporting.
- A non-stop diet of applied psychology and behavioural modification through the media from the government's own 'nudge unit' the B.I.T, has left people in a constant state of shock and high anxiety.
- Government always lies - over war, over public money, over child-rape, and now a public health scare. which the figures show is almost non-existent.

REJECT

MASKS

- Masks are unhealthy, unnecessary, and you can refuse to wear one with any 'reasonable' excuse , whether that is physical, mental or spiritual.
- Masks restrict oxygen flow, cause skin problems, and are completely useless against any airborne diseases.
- The wearing of masks has nothing to do with your well-being, but is about getting you to comply, even with nonsensical, pointless edicts.
- You are not bound by law to wear one, no matter what pressure you are put under.

DISTANCING

- There is no scientific basis for any distancing rules, they are purely psychological, to dehumanise us.
- As if the virus knows how many are in your group, for what purpose you are meeting, what time it is, the day of the week, the area you are in and whether you are standing up or sitting down.
- Refuse to allow them to take away our natural human social interactions, based on a mass psychological operation.
- Hug, kiss, cheer, sing, shout and have dozens of people round for a party. Let's get back to normal.

LOCKDOWN

- The government want to tell you where you can and can't go, who you can and can't be with, who you can talk to and what time you have to leave.
- Even in wartime, such draconian measures were not imposed.
- This is social conditioning, again it's all about your compliance, not your health and safety.
- The WHO have announced lockdowns do not help at all.
- What rules will they bring out next, and at what point are you going to say 'no, that's a step too far now' ?

REFUSE

SAVE YOUR BUSINESS AND SAVE YOUR HIGH STREET

- They keep bringing out new rules yet nothing seems to end this 'crisis.'
- This is all based on fearmongering to establish more and more government control over our lives. The plan is to kill off small businesses (especially on the high street) to complete the push to a totally corporatised digital world, where everything can be tracked, traced and tightly controlled.
- You're thinking if you don't comply with these rules that harm your business they'll shut you down, but they want to shut you down anyway. Ignore the rules, their case is built on a house of lies and deception. Be brave.
- It can be stopped, but only if people make the effort to fight back - if you resist, more will resist, but some people need to spark the fire and stand up to tyranny.
- Our ancestors had to get on boats to Normandy or fight in fields in France - we just have to stand up to two blokes from the council. It is time to make your own decisions and take charge of your own life - the government get enough from us without giving them our whole soul too.
- Use your local high street, support small businesses. Avoid the biggest online retailers wherever possible.
- The government and world organisations do not have your best interests at heart. Only you can make the best decisions for you and your family.
