NCME national council on measurement in education

Member Spotlight: Jennifer Lewis

Affiliation: University of Massachusetts Amherst

Position: Research Fellow

What do you currently do? Are you working on anything in particular you'd like to briefly share with the NCME community?

Currently, I work for the Center for Educational Assessment at UMass Amherst to coordinate test administrator training for Adult Education practitioners across the state of Massachusetts.

What sparked your initial interest in educational measurement?

Educational measurement is an avenue where we can use research and psychometrics to solve problems and are given the opportunity to have an impact on an individual's learning/educational experience.

What does NCME mean to you?

Networking. Sharing ideas. Witnessing innovation.

If you could be any fruit, which would it be?
