The Ellora caves

the comprehensive photographic documentation

About this site:

Dr. Deepanjana Klein of Christie's, Professor Emeritus Walter Spink of the University of Michigan, and Arno Klein of Columbia University have brought to you the first comprehensive documentation of the Ellora cave temples. Scholars and students are welcome to use this online resource, which will be incorporated in a book. It was announced in December, 2008, by our sponsor ArtStor.

Photographs and website design: Arno Klein
Descriptions accompanying photographs are based on the original field notes of Professor Spink.

Cave 10

The main hall, with its impressive colonnade, is focused upon a huge teaching Buddha, seated in the bhadrasana pose on a lion throne. The main image is flanked by standing attendant bodhisattvas: Avalokitesvara (with his long-stemmed lotus and what may be a ruined Amitabha in his jata headdress) to the left and Manjusri (a stupa in his crown) to the right.
