Nier Automata, Divinity Original Sin, Dragons Dogma Dark Arisen, Dark Souls, Cuphead... Why does every single video game feel the need to include some type of anti-Christian lore? What's so satisfying about it? Name a single, good RPG that doesn't display any kind of anti-Christianity themes. And I don't even mean like "no killing cuz that's a sin" or anything like that. I mean just the lore/story/themes of the video game.

What? I haven't played entirely through the other ones, so I don't know, but where is there anti-Christianity lore in Dark Souls?

Like OP, are you talking about games that specifically call out religion? Or are you just saying those games include things that Christianity doesn't agree with, like same-sex couples or something.

Not even things Christians disagree with/find sinful. There's GONNA be killing or some kind of "sinful" something in every game. Just like "making deals with the devil" in Cuphead and the opening intro of nier automata is her talking about she wants a chance to kill the god that would let humanity live this way and Adam and eve bosses and stuff like that. Why are they all so obsessed with Christianity specifically?

Seems like he talking about any kind of game world mythology which doesn't include creation orchestrated by the Christian God. If I'm understanding correctly, LOTR would be a prime example. Or I could be wrong.

Great, so that's one example from an RPG and one example from a not-an-RPG. Where are all these RPG's that supposedly have anti-Christianity lore?

Like in Dark Souls? Could you tell me? Because I'm still not seeing it.

Literally have to pray to humans for forgiveness of your sins and other stuff that Christians just shouldn't be doing.

But Christianity doesn't exist in the world of Dark Souls, meaning the entire concept of a soul and the rules regarding souls are entirely different.

Um the tagline is actually, "Don't deal with the Devil". And the game is about them being forced to work against their will for the devil until they become powerful enough to defeat the devil himself.

"The Church" makes for a very easy and cliche villain because it's very easy to hate people who present themselves as pious while secretly being manipulative and evil.

Well it's mostly that guthix ruled over the world theyre in explicitly underming saradomin as a Christian equivlant supreme creator and it's identified zaros as one of the oldest gods created in another time by elder gods. Saradomin and zamorak (God and satan) are really new kids on the block.
