Played the original when it was released on the PC... Love it. Old school Zelda-style randomized dungeons with a huge variety of power ups and items.

Pretty hard, too. Definitely one of the better games I've played in the last few years.

FINALLY!

I had played a bit of the original flash version but put off picking up BoI when I heard Rebirth was in development and that it was coming to PS4. I've been following Mr. McMillen's updates with all the new things that are going into this version and it looks fantastic.

I've got mixed feelings about it coming out via PS+ since I'd be fine outright purchasing it, but I'm sure he's getting a great deal from Sony and a PS+ offering means more people can be exposed to the game.

DA:I and now BoI: Rebirth. November is the new October for me, it seems.

So hyped we finally have a release date for this. I am praying to all possible deities that this will not be delayed in Europe/Australia like 1001 is right now.

You don't already play it with controls? There was a mod for the game called SpiderMod that had a bunch of fixes for the game, as well as provided controller support. It works far better for me with a controller, no chance of any mis-hit keys or anything like that.

You can fetch SpiderMod here if you want to try it out and see what Isaac is like with controls (instead of faffing around with Joy2Key)

Really? The part I enjoyed most was the unlocking. I didn't 100% the original because once I had unlocked everything, the feeling of discovery was gone and cranking out runs with different characters felt kind of grindy.

You can do it with right analog stick if you really want to, but shooting with the face buttons is so much easier and enjoyable. Nothing beats playing BoI on a big screen TV with a controller, apart from playing Rebirth from the looks of it Couldn't get in the original as much as I liked but will give Rebirth a chance.

Is there a reason this isn't coming to the eShop? Like Nintendo having policies for games with "religious" content? As much as I love my Vita, I dislike the sticks and would prefer playing it on the Gamepad with Off-TV-Play.
