It kept old Roman ideas and discoveries alive due to the fact it was an evolution of Byzantine government, and It held a state of religious and political toleration for the majority of its existence. Hell, despite being an expansionist state, it's goal was to appease all those it had as subjects by allowing them to continue whatever they believed in to prevent an uprising, and it had one of the most well developed and organized governments and financial systems in the European and Muslim worlds during it's existence until the 1700's lead to Europe catching up with the Ottoman's. The Ottoman Empire also controlled trade routes between Europe and Asia and forced them to develop sea trade routes, which were beneficial in the long run to develop a better understanding of the Earth and expanding trade throughout the known world.

I love this.

Islam was created by the Roman Catholic Church because the Koran is a book of law, which is embued by other religions, for which Mohammed never existed. Jesus never existed. What existed was the despotic power of the Empire of Roma. The Roman Empire always used religions to blend in, because there was always commerce. Money and war, like this day, was common. The people from the ancient land of Persia, and Canaan, and Sumer, always were familiar with many gods, and remember that much of the beauty in the Koran promotes the ideas and astrology of mystics and the esoteric for those who are children of the sun. Though the Catholic church forced a new religion for control, the writers of these wonderful books, always left clues for the gnostic to understand the tale of the despotic and corrupted kirk that is the empire of Rome. The only true book worth understanding, I feel, would be the "Hermetica": the book from the dark land of Egypt. It is the Egyptians who live on the holy land, and who bring us the electricity and masonry, and law, that we should look for. The Hebrews and Jews lie about their civilization being older, because of the people of Shem and the Canannites, but in truth, remember that history is bias, and always plagued with scholars who have an agenda; selective honesty. The Egyptian civilization is older. But, the oldest civilization is in Turkey.

Its a goddamn video game. They can rewrite history however they want. I don't care if they show Boudica defeating the Roman Empire. Its a video game. Real Life should not apply and no one in their right mind should be offended by a video game.

Sun_Tzu, I hate to say this (as much as I respect you), but everything you've posted is during the Empires deathbed (1900-1924). The Ottoman Empire was really progressive during the 1500's and the 1600's. The Ottoman's actually helped France in a war aginst the Habsburg Monarchy by conquering Nice. To say the Ottoman Empire was "evil" is just factually wrong.

Your looking too much into this, AC is just a science fiction storyline that has historical settings and is based around a huge conspiracy about ancient aliens and two competeing forces: One group wants to control humans because they believe it will make the world a better place, while the other group wants humans to have free will because they think that would make the world a better place.

The game isn't anti anything, and it's defiantley not anti christian or anti muslim. Your looking for something that isn't there.

Progressive in what way? Sure there was a very limited degree of freedom of worship at times, but throughout its history if you weren't muslim you were a second class citizen.

You're angry about the development of civilization? What I tell you is what has been happening , but yet you take it as an insult. Perhaps it is the school that you learn from that is the real insult to all who seek an understanding of our universe? But it is understanding how man, grows through different stages of understanding themselves and seeing things differently whence investigation has occurred.

Then again, much of politics and law, and government (mind control) is a game. Video-game; this term of two words, means that you "see" the "game". All games borrow from Al-Kemi (alchemy), Canon/Talmud/Law of the High Seas, Government; they are the legion of the Sun (religion). Much of the historical factors are used to give another esoteric look into the corrupted story of the High Story (History). Remember, the people that create games are not fools. Much of them understand far more than we give them credit for. Final Fantasy 7; this game has alchemy and religious references from our reality. So does Skyrim (The El-der Scrolls). The word Elder, comes from the El of the Elohim; the father bull of the 28 elohim minors, and the 7 primes planets which are the wanderers (elohim) to the Canaanites. Sephiroth is term that comes from the mystical progression of the Kabbala, and the 7 chakras.

This is a type role playing game.

Raiden, turn the game console off, right now. The mission is a failure, cut the power of right now.

I hear it's amazing when the famous purple stuffed worm in flap-jaw space with the tuning fork does a raw blink on Hara-Kiri Rock. I need scissors! 61!

..... Where in the hell are people getting this.. They are battling the Templars through the entire series.. Religion is rarely touched and when it is it makes no distinctions what so ever.. Outside of the fact that the templars and/or other factions are using religious organizations for a means to a end.. That is it.. The series is surprisingly good in keeping neutral when it comes to this..

[QUOTE="lordreaven"][QUOTE="-Sun_Tzu-"] No one likes France. And what does France have to do with how sh!tty the Ottomans were? And lol at you thinking there weren't any revolutions against the Ottoman empire (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Young_Turk_Revolution). Again I have to ask, where did you learn your history from?

-- -Sun_Tzu-

Sun_Tzu, I hate to say this (as much as I respect you), but everything you've posted is during the Empires deathbed (1900-1924). The Ottoman Empire was really progressive during the 1500's and the 1600's. The Ottoman's actually helped France in a war aginst the Habsburg Monarchy by conquering Nice. To say the Ottoman Empire was "evil" is just factually wrong.
Progressive in what way? Sure there was a very limited degree of freedom of worship at times, but throughout its history if you weren't muslim you were a second class citizen.

The Ottoman Empire was just like any other, sure they did some bad things but they were relatively pragmatic in their rule over subject nations just like Rome and the Persian empire. All three empires suffered numerous revolts despite leaving their subject states generally to themselves. No one likes to be ruled over no matter how fair they are treated and so all large empires have suffered this problem.

Personally, I spent a lot of time trying to link the Christian faith with Assassin's Creed. It actually does not conflict at all! You see, in the biblical book of Enoch, we see mention of beings like the First Civilization.They made Humanity, but it was God that gave Humans life. They are called the Annunaki by the Sumerians, but we call them angels. See, Humans DO have a sixth sense in real life, it's called Spirit, which is what connects us to God. Contrary to popular belief, our brain size is not what makes us intelligent; we only became sentient beings when God gave us Spirit. God, Jesus and the Holy Spirit are the same person, just in different bodies, each representing a different part of God's personality. You ever see how your shoulder angels and devil in cartoons represent your Id and Superego? The Angel is your sense of ultimate morality, and the devil is your sense of selfishness. The two balance out to form the Ego, which is your personality. Well God the Father is the sense of Justice and Dominion, Jesus the Son is the sense of Love and Forgiveness, and the Holy Spirit is the sense of Awareness that grants Morality and Consciousness. When God put Spirit into Adam, He placed part of His own Consciousness into Adam, allowing him to not only be aware of himself as a being, but also as a child of God (In Spirit, not in body). Jesus was the Body, so through His death, our bodies were cleansed of sin and only our Spiritual connection to the Lord is visible (As long as we ask forgiveness). God does not actually LOOK Human, Jesus was not Human, He was God in "Human form." See, we are not our bodies, we are our souls, and the Spirit of God is a part of our soul. Our body is how our soul gets around, and our brain is the access point where our soul connects to our physical body. Now have you ever wondered whether our feelings like love and happiness, or our ability to dream, comes from our body or our soul? It's actually both. Without souls, our bodies would just be logical husks that exist only to survive and mate, with no emotional capability whatsoever (that is evolution at it's peak). But when our soul interacts with our brain, the byproduct is our "Mind" which is where things like love, happiness, dreams and trust come into play. Without souls, we would have no feelings. Animals have feelings and dreams, so they have souls, but not Spirit. Our Spirit takes us to the next level of consciousness, which grants us morality, self-awareness, and comprehension of God. I think full Spiritual awareness is the sixth sense! Now my idea is that when the Annunaki (First Civilization) placed their genes into the ape, and turned him into the first man, the man gained access to the sixth sense, but the neurotransmitter blocked his spirit from interacting with his brain. Now I'm going to assume you have heard of the Sumerian story about the Annunaki, the "aliens" that came to Earth and made Humans to be slaves. The Assassin's Creed games are based on this story, but it was not just a story, the Book of Enoch DOES call attention to it, and I have found a way to justify it in the game. You see, the bible often quotes God referring to Himself as "Elohim." But there are also scriptures that apparently refer to Angels, Demons, the Holy Spirit and other beings as Elohim as well. I read that Elohim was not God's actual name, but it was a word that referred to a higher plane of existence. Any who live in that plane are called Elohim, but God called Himself "Elohim" by name because that state of being, and all who live in it would not exist if He had not created it. It's like being a Christian; we all are Christians in Spirit and beliefs, but Jesus was called Christ, so we could not be what we are if He never existed. Same thing with God and the Elohim; He was the first. Now I think Annunaki are Angels of the physical world who were tasked with overseeing and testing the physical aspects of Creation. They are not technically Elohim in body, since they are physical beings and are bound to the Earth. But they held a sixth sense: Comprehension of God, or Spirit, which opened their minds to higher levels of awareness. They held no power to alter the Earth it, rather they were like the beta testers. When they saw something wrong, they would ask one of the "higher" Elohim to fix it. Elohim hold Spiritual power over magic. Annunaki hold Secular power over science and Technology. God holds the power to control and alter both. As you can see there is a sort of caste system that has developed here. While the higher Elohim were overseeing the details of Creation, God wanted the Humans to look like the Annunaki, but did not want them to have "full access" to the sixth sense, because then they would know good and evil. Apes were the animals that most resembled what God wanted us to look like, so they were used as a base or blueprint for our design. God told the Annunaki to use their knowledge of science to sculpt the ape into a Human (We did not really share a common ancestor, we are just based on their design. If you were a bridge builder that had to build ten bridges, would you not use the same basic blueprint for each, and then change them up as you go?). God told all the Elohim and Annunaki that they would all have to submit to the Humans once they were created. This was when Lucifer stood up, and shouted that he would not submit to Humans, since they were merely physical beings. Many other Elohim stood with Lucifer, and they entered in a war with God's loyal followers. The Annunaki, being physical and therefore bound to the physical world, and unable to help, did not want to serve Humans. They decided to attempt to play a trick on God and the Elohim. They would use genetic manipulation and turn the ape into the first Human, but they bred a neurotransmitter into his brain so he could not have free will. The Annunaki would pretend to be the "teachers" to the Humans, showing them how to farm the land and tend the Garden. They would lie to God and tell Him that the tools they built would be used to transfer knowledge into the Human's minds, and show them what to do. However, the tools were actually designed to control the Humans, and this would allow them to stay in control. (Sarcastic tone) And God would never know! The Annunaki placed their own genes into the ape, and used their tools to manipulate his genetics and transform his body into a smaller version of themselves. However, the neurotransmitter prevented the sixth sense from developing, and the man was now a mindless slave to the Piece of Eden. See? It was the genes of a higher being that gave us access to higher levels of thinking, so we all have a sixth sense, but when the neurotransmitter is activated, it cuts off the link between our Spirit and our bodies, making us slaves. Next they proceeded to take the genes of the man and clone them, making a great number of Humans to serve them. They used the Pieces of Eden to manipulate their minds, and used them to build a massive City called Eden. When the war in Heaven ended, and Lucifer and his followers were banished, God returned to the Earth, where the Annunaki had left the first man to await God's return. God saw that the man had been fully sculpted to His exact specifications. God was proud of the Annunaki for their hard work, but He saw something that the Annunaki had not expected Him to see. God is the seer of all things, and He is connected to His creations through Spirit. This being had no Spirit, and thus could not communicate with God. God looked out onto Eden and saw that the First Civilization had planned to fool Him, and make Him believe that they were teaching the Humans, when they were really serving as their masters. God stood before the mindless man and breathed into his nostrils. The man became a living being, destroying the neurotransmitter, and giving him access to Spirit. But since he was only half Annnunaki, he possess only half of the sixth sense. But in possessing Spirit he was now in the image of God. Without Spirit, we are not Human, because that is what makes us Human, and despite his being sculpted by the Annunaki, it was God who gave the man life. Now I also read that the Shroud can't restore life, but Jesus was the only one to come back to life using it. If you read the Wiki site, it says very clearly, the Shroud CANT restore life, but Jesus did rise. Maybe it only restored His life, because He was God. Think about it: only after Jesus rose from the grave did people claim to hear the Shroud speaking to them in a loving voice offering to heal their injuries, so maybe it absorbed part of Jesus' Spirit, granting it "life." Finally, reiterating my idea that the sixth sense of Knowledge is Spiritual awareness, maybe Assassin's like Ezio and Altair have more genes than the average person, giving them a higher state of awareness, which they call "Eagle Vision." The average person probably only holds about 20% of the First Civilization's genes, giving them access to 20% of Spiritual awareness. Adam had 50%, Prophets all held 25%, Jesus held 100% and Desmond holds about 20%. It think God chose the Prophets to use the POE's in His name. Come on, you think it's a coincidence that Adam, Moses, David, and even Joan of Arc ALL held a Piece of Eden, and ALL claimed to see and hear God? Plus, the Ark of the Covenant in the first game had an Apple in it's center, which is where God chose to speak through to Moses. What do ya think?
