Religious Disclaimer is phony

I find that the religious disclaimer at the beginning of the game is phony. The game is an insult to Jewish people as it says the miracles in their faith are due to some machine rather than God. The same for Christians in terms of the miracles of Jesus. It paints Muslims as murdering assassins. The spiritual or religious consultants were not in the credits that I could see.

I think this game is an insult to everyone of any faith. It is atheist propaganda.

It didn't say that it was trying to paint an accurate picture of any faith, but rather the game was made by people of different faiths and beliefs. There were no religious consultants because they were -not- trying to accurately portray different religions. The disclaimer is simply saying that nobody should be offended because people who made the game participate in the faiths represented in the game, and they understood this was a game and not a representation of Judaism, Christianity or Islam.
