I never thought of this before when I finished the game. My first play through I did picked Ryan but my friend picked beyond and he point it out that the Beyond ending can be offensive to people who are super religious especially Christians. I am not a religious guy. You can say I'm an angnostic. I do believe in God but I also have a lot of questions and I dont believe in structures like going to church every sunday and all that.. Dont really follow everything in the bible. So I did play through it again and picked the Beyond ending. Didn't really see why it would be offensive but maybe because Im not that religious?. So I want to asked religious people in here if it was offensive to you. Remember David Cage is also an agnostic.

Only to those who are overly sensitive.

Only the same people who get offended that other religions exist in the first place.

Religious people don't play video games. They think video games are evil.

I can't say you're agnostic. You said you believe in god. Agnostic means you think that it's unknown whether or not god exists. If you believe in god, you've picked a side and thus cannot be agnostic.
